Ex-Student Wins 'Reverse' Discrimination Suit

discrimination, a federal judge says Georgetown University violated the civil rights of a white student by setting aside mes of its first-year law school scholarships for minority applicants. There is no justification for saying that a 'minority' student with a demonstrated financial need of $2,000 requires more scholarship aid than a 'nonminority' student," U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch ruled Wednesday. The judge said Georgetown's four-year-old practice of earmarking 60 per cent of its first-year law scholarships for minority students was "arbi-trary" and a violation of the Civil Rights Act's bar against discrimination on the basis of race.

persons who claimed they were subject to "reverse" discrimination by schools, corporations or government agencies seeking to provide opportunities for racial minorities or women. Gaseh's decision was a personal victory for J. Michael Flanagan, who sued Georgetown because there were no scholarships left for while students by the time he was admitted in 1973, although there were still scholarships for minorities Flanagan complained that the minority students who garnered 60 per cent of the grants formed only 11 per cent of the class.

Flanagan, 24, has since graduated and lives in suburban Alexandria, Va. He could not be reached for comment. The Georgetown's attorneys argued in vain that the school's financial aid policies were a "bona fide affir-mative action program to increase minority enrollment." They also claimed the school was not subject to the civil rights law. but Gasch said it was since Georgetown accepted $7 million in lederal funds to build its Law Center.

Flanagan's suit recalled the widely publicized case of another white law student, Marco DeFunis Jr., a Phi Beta Kappa un-dergraduate who claimed the University of Washington Law School rejected him in 1971 while accepting lesser qualified to rule on the constitutionality of such admission practices. It said DeFunis' case was moot because he had already been admilted to the law school during the litigation and was about to graduate. But lower federal courts have come down on the side of "nonminority" plaintiffs in several recent civil rights cases

Divided Agreement On Revenue Sharing

The outlook for federal revenue sharing, which until a few months ago seemed headed for termination by this year-end, has improved.

Whichever party wins this White House and Congress in November is certain to continue this version of federal aid first initiated by the Nixon Administration.

Some weeks ago the House adopted a $25 billion package payable to over 38,000 state and local governments between next January 1st and September 30, 1880. The Senate is still public the property of the senate is still public the property of the senate is still the senate of the senate in the senate of the senate is still public the senate of the sena mulling the proposal, but is expected ich agreement somewhere within the House's perimeter in due season.

The difference between revenue sharing and federal aid is the Washington purse strings never quite let loose of the latter. The recipients have to spend the funds for the purposes spelled out in the grants and file a mountain of paperwork at Washing-ton to show they are not diverting the money into unauthorized channels. The matter of control over the spending at best is a cloudy 50-50 sharing between the receiving unit and a Revenue sharing is simplicity itself.

The money is mailed out to the local and state governments who are free to spend it for virtually whatever reason best appeals to them.

The attraction for revenue sharing is best measured by any threat to cut it off. The U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National Association of Coun-ties at their annual conventions a month ago spoke heatedly against any suggestion to curb the flow and adopted ringing resolutions that it be increased.

The argument against revenue sharing is two fold.

One goes to the formula of giving a third of the proceeds to the state governments and the balance to their. subordinate counties, cities and townships. The local authorities con-tend their revenue sources established by state law are all too slim as it is to be shorted from total participation. A be shorted from total participation. A gue for eliminating or greatly reduc-sideline complaint best illustrated by ing federal aid and diverting that the feuding between Mayor Daley of money flow to revenue sharing.

Chicago and Governor Walker of Illinois is that some potentates back home use revenue sharing to bolster their own political kingdoms.

position of the three major Presidential aspirants reflects this home front division of opinion.

President Ford strongly advocates retaining the present formula.

Jimmy Carter advocates giving everything to the local governments. Ronald Reagan says keep the money at home instead of sending it to Washington for a return trip. Another home front dispute centers on distributing the funds by a head count. The large city mayors plagued by inner city problems argue their people are short changed. They need the money, or so their mayors claim. whereas the residents in a bedroom community do not.

Outside this debate between the recipients is a contention that revenue sharing perpetuates a governmental system badly in need of correction.

The advocates for revenue sharing contend it is vital to sustain local government

Their critics reply the system discourages consolidation of local units which might become more efficient through merging duplicating services and functions.

This argument is sound enough but it raises so many hackles that few Washington politicos are willing to risk its acceptance.

Toth was sentenced to seven years in prison and in the year since his trial he has been kept incommunicado from American embassy personnel, an unusual restriction even for a communist country. But Toth did have someone fighting for him, the U.S. Ambassador to Yugoslavia, Laurence H. Silberman.

After Silberman obtained Toth's release from Yugoslavia and saw him board a plane for the United States, the ambassador opened up. Divided Agreement On Revenue Sharing sharing, which until a few months ago seemed headed for termination by this year-end, has improved.

Whichever party wins this White House and Congress in November is certain to continue this version of federal aid first initiated by the Nixon Administration.

Some weeks ago the House adopted a $25 billion package payable to over 38,000 state and local governments between next January 1st and September 30, 1980. The Senate is still mulling the proposal, but is expected to reach agreement somewhere within the House's perimeter in due season.

The difference between revenue sharing and federal aid is the Washington purse strings never quite let loose of the latter. The recipients have to spend the funds for the purposes spelled out in the grants and file a mountain of paperwork at Washington to show they are not diverting the money into unauthorized channels. The matter of control over the spending at best is a cloudy 50-50 sharing between the receiving unit and a Washington agency.

Revenue sharing is simplicity itself. The money is mailed out to the local and state governments who are free to spend it for virtually whatever reason best appeals to them.

The attraction for revenue sharing is best measured by any threat to cut it off. The U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National Association of Counties at their annual conventions a month ago spoke heatedly against any suggestion to curb the flow and adopted ringing resolutions that it be increased.

The argument against revenue sharing is two fold.

One goes to the formula of giving a third of the proceeds to the state governments and the balance to their subordinate counties, cities and townships. The local authorities contend their revenue sources established by state law are all too slim as it is to

The outlook for federal revenue Chicago and Governor Walker of Illinois is that some potentates back home use revenue sharing to bolster their own political kingdoms.

The position of the three major Presidential aspirants reflects this home front division of opinion.

President Ford strongly advocates retaining the present formula.

Jimmy Carter advocates giving everything to the local governments. Ronald Reagan says keep the money at home instead of sending it to

Washington for a return trip. Another home front dispute centers on distributing the funds by a head count. The large city mayors plagued by inner city problems argue their people are short changed. They need the money, or so their mayors claim, whereas the residents in a bedroom community do not. Outside this debate between the recipients is a contention that revenue sharing perpetuates a governmental system badly in need of correction. The advocates for revenue sharing contend it is vital to sustain local government. Their critics reply the system discourages consolidation of local units which might become more efficient through merging duplicating services and functions. This argument is sound enough but it raises so many hackles that few Washington politicos are willing to risk its acceptance.

Tyrants Waste Nations' Talents

WASHINGTON - Many years ago, in Hitler's heyday, I had the opportunity to interview a major figure among Nazi Germany's totalitarian allies.

The discussion turned to the great losses in talent - the Albert Einsteins who emigrated, other greats who were killed or imprisoned or so restricted their talents were never allowed to bloom. Could any country afford a system, I asked, which resulted in such a drain in talent? I was leaving aside for the moment the moral losses the man I was interviewing seemed incapable of understanding. Some decades later, East

Germany faced such an overwhelming emigration of scientists and professional and technical men and women, it built the Berlin wall in an effort to prevent further flight. This, they succeeded in doing. But they forgot, or would not face the fact, that their internal suppression made certain they would not enjoy all the rewards from the most talented among their citizenry. Men who give lip service to iron-fisted rulers to save their skins and positions do not usually have the talent for the great discoveries or scientific, economic or artistic leadership a country needs to make its place in the world. The Soviet Union now has the same problem. The dissidents in that land include some of the finest brains in painting, writing, physics, mathematics, engineering, and a fistfull of egally important fields.

The Kremlin is reluctantly allowing the more prominent, internationally known, to leave the country one by one. The latest is writer Andrei Amalrik. As with Albert Einstein, Russia's loss is the West's gain.

But this is only the small tip of Russia's loss. That country's persecution of minorities has led to an emigration of middle and upper level talent as large as the authorities would permit.

Numbers of able men, some in the near genius class, but less known to the West, have been secretly condemned to insane asylums or undergone medical operation to reduce them to mediocrity. As is well known, thousands more are condemned to one prison camp or another in the Gulag Archipelago.

Staff Writer
A convenient means of crossing the waterways between St. Joseph and Benton Harbor has been a main concern of local residents from the 1836s to the awaiting the completion of two new bridges across the Morrison Channel and the St. Joseph River.

Residents of the 1830s, did not yet have any bridges, but as early as 1836, the construction of two bridges was proposed.

According to documents owned by Ronald Rutz of Warren, formerly of St. Joseph, an amendment to the Act to In-corporate the Village of St. Joseph, approved March 21, 1836, it was voted to establish ferries and construct bridges connecting the north and south parts of said village. In those days, St. Joseph was also located across the river.

A part of the amendment says authorization was given "to contract for a loan for the use of said village not exceeding $20,000 for 20 years at seven per cent interest provided the electors authorize the loan."

The president and trustees of the village were authorized to construct a bridge across the St. Joseph River at or near the crossing of the Territorial road leading from Timothy F. Sheldon's to St. Joseph, provided such bridge shall be at least 14 feet above the common low were also authorized to construct a bridge across the Paw Paw River in such village at such place within four chains of the entrance of the Paw Paw River into the St. Joseph, provided such bridge shall be at ast 10 feet above common lov

The amendment, which was approved March 21, 1836, also says, "the president and trustees are hereby authorized to receive subscriptions of money material or labor to be applied in the construction of both said bridges and to sue for and collect the amount of each subscription according to the terms thereof and costs of suit before any court having competent jurisdiction any person or persons who shall obstruct the building of either of the bridges

An amount of $20,000 was authorized at that time for two bridges. The bridges now under construction have an estimated cost of $9.2 million dollars and are expected to be completed in

According to Ellis' "History of Berrien and Van Buren Counties," published in 1880, the citizens met and passed a resolution to build the bridge across the St. Joseph river on old Ferry road, and another near the mouth of the Paw Paw, both free of toll. The same year a ferry was established.

The Ellis book says the bridge across the St. Joseph River was across the St. Joseph River was completed in 1839 with a $4,009 debt on it. Therefore the builders of the bridge, the Messrs. Stewart, Sawyer and company, were to have the use of the bridge for 14 years and charge a toll with the bridge to be returned to the village when paid for.

The Ellis book also says on April 6, 1840, the St. Joseph Township board voted to raise money to reimburse the CorJoseph. She was the mother of

She feels home economists should be advocates for the family, taking positions on many issues and interpreting those positions to appropriate individuals, agencies and organizations.

Besides the traditional family, we're seeing more one person households, more childless households and more families headed by females.

"We're also seeing more men and women sharing roles in families as wage earners, parents and homemakers as well as family roles being interchanged with more egalitarian family styles emerging.

"About one family in three in this country needs help in understanding factors shaping its future," she says, citing some causes of emotional pressures in daily living: Changing roles and responsibilities of men and women; changing attitudes toward parenting; increasing mobility with ties lost between generations; increasing use of energy and materials; increasing demand by family members for rights, including equality.

"Because of the energy situation, the economy and worldwide interdependence on resources, families are experiencing crises. But home economists can and should help families maximize their resources," she says.

"We certainly can contribute in such areas as nutritional status of families, aging programs,

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of three articles about the history of St. Joseph based on original documents owned by Ronald Rutz of Warren, a former St. Joseph resident.

By SAN DEE WALLACE Staff Writer

A convenient means of crossing the waterways between St. Joseph and Benton Harbor has been a main concern of local residents from the 1830s to the 1970s.

Residents of the 1970s are awaiting the completion of two new bridges across the Morrison Channel and the St. Joseph River.

Residents of the 1830s, did not yet have any bridges, but as early as 1836, the construction of two bridges was proposed.

According to documents owned by Ronald Rutz of Warren, formerly of St. Joseph, an amendment to the Act to Incorporate the Village of St. Joseph, approved March 21, 1836, it was voted to establish ferries and construct bridges connecting the north and south parts of said village. In those days, St. Joseph was also located across the river.

A part of the amendment says authorization was given "to contract for a loan for the use of said village not exceeding $20,000 for 20 years at seven per cent interest provided the electors authorize the loan."

The president and trustees of the village were authorized to construct a bridge across the St. Joseph River at or near the crossing of the Territorial road leading from Timothy F. Sheldon's to St. Joseph, provided such bridge shall be at least 14 feet above the common low water.

The president and trustees were also authorized to construct a bridge across the Paw Paw River in such village at such place within four chains of the entrance of the Paw Paw River into the St. Joseph, provided such bridge shall be at least 10 feet above common low water.

The amendment, which was approved March 21, 1836, also says, "the president and trustees are hereby authorized to receive subscriptions of money. material or labor to be applied in the construction of both said bridges and to sue for and collect the amount of each subscription according to the erms thereof and costs of before any court having competent jurisdiction any person or persons who shall obstruct the building of either of the bridges.

An amount of $20,000 was authorized at that time for two bridges. The bridges now under construction have an estimated cost of $9.2 million dollars and are expected to be completed in 1977.

According to Ellis' "History of Berrien and Van Buren Counties," published in 1880, the citizens met and passed a resolution to build the bridge across the St. Joseph river on old Ferry road, and another near the mouth of the Paw Paw, both free of toll. The same year a ferry was established.

The Ellis book says the bridge across the St. Joseph River was completed in 1839 with a $4,000 debt on it. Therefore the builders of the bridge, the Messrs. Stewart, Sawyer and company, were to have the use of the bridge for 14 years and charge a toll with the bridge to be returned to the village when paid for.

The Ellis book also says on April 6, 1840, the St. Joseph Township board voted to raise money to reimburse the Corporation of St. Joseph for money expended on the causeway across the marsh east of the St. Joseph River opposite St. Joseph village and at an adjourned meeting in May, it was voted to finish the east end of the causeway and reimburse the Corporation of St. Joseph.

In conjunction with the bridge, on June 12, 1841, Wayne street from the bridge to Ship street was declared a public highway.

The "Berrien Bicentennial" book quotes tolls for the bridge at 12½ cents for a person, horse or cow to go across the bridge; 25 cents for a man and horse, and 37½ cents for an ox or horse drawn wagon

Early day residents, however, only had to be concerned with one water crossing. According to the "Berrien Bicentennial" book, the Morrison Channel was laid out in 1878. The book also says, a deed granting use of the canal to the public was recorded April 12, 1878.

Macrame is the newest fashion rage for clothing, but it is great for home decoration, too. There is nothing like a touch of macrame for making a home look characteristic for you. Macrame is a personal touch, whether you choose curtains, wall hangings, or room dividers. Luckily, today you do not need to be skilled in the fine art of macrame to add these accesories to your home. Available in many forms, and knotted to please your taste, macrame these days is as much fun to buy as it is to make—and so much quicker.

Bring your home up to date with a new touch. Come to WALTERS PAINT & WALLPAPER, 313 Main St., St. Joseph for a complete selection of decorative papers by Van Luit, Greeff, Strahan and Schumacher. We can mix and match fabrics and wall coverings. Tel. 983-2871. Open 8-5:30. Mon. 8-8. Sat. 8-1.

Pastry Varies With Water

The amount of water used to make pastry varies slightly with the type and kind of flour and the duration of storage.

Too little water makes dough hard to handle. It may crack when rolled out, crumble after baking and taste dry when eaten. Too much water causes the dough to shrink and lose its shape while baking. The result - a tough hard postry.

Drummers Intrigue Collector

By VIVIAN BROWN

Vacation time is a prime ried for collectors who like to browse through new shops in their perennial search for an addition to a collection.

The harder an item is to find, the more intrigued the hunters become as they peer into shop windows or store shelves for that clusive foot warmer, glass of special pattern or color, or

For career woman Terry Mayer of New York, a collection means drumbeaters. She now has 236 that range in size from one inch to 14 inches. Any object shown with a drum is fair game

"But it becomes more than that. It really piques your curiosity so that you follow up currently so that you follow up every clue in learning more about your hobby," she explained in her office-apart-ment where she keeps her collection on numerous glass

She got into collecting in-nocently enough about eight years ago, she says. Thinking of herself as a drumbeater — she is a fashion commentator and publicist - she acquired her first drummer, a wind-up Inbeen used by a store executive to illustrate a point in a speech.

After that she was "hooked," she says. She soon found a companion for the Indian, then mother, then a regiment of sol diers, and pairs of thines, and as she says, "it all adds up."

She also began reading about drumbeating in libraries and has become so involved that she sometimes feels that "there may be some kind of happening connected with it all, but whatever is going to happen as a result of the collection hasn't happened yet," she explained.

"If only we knew the language of the drums," she goes on. "It always has been a basic form of communication aroung primitive societies where they used them to send messages about hirths, deaths, coronations and travelers in need of lodging," she explained. "When you think about it, almost everyone in the world is beating a drum for something: communicating with people gets the message across.

Her collection includes red, and blue soldiers that march backwards in unison as they rat-a-tat, Royal Scots in kilts doing their thing, and a Bicentennial group of clothespin soldiers like those dolls made by the colonists, but her drum-beaters are not only soldiers.

They are angels - winged winking, little and big, Irogs, clowns, elephants, Russian bears, monkeys, Japanese ladies, a Snoopy, nuns and even a railroad brakeman. There is a cookie cutter drum, and one that is a puzzle, and they are in pendulum clocks, salt and pepper shakers and a bunny bank.

"But there are only eight women in the collection, which interests me. In some societies women were not allowed to play drums," she says.

Two of the women are nuns, one is a blue-jean-clad girl. another is a kabuki dancer. Although the nuns were once the tiniest in her collection - two inches high — there are now two one-inch drummers, a French girl and a colonist wearing a tricorn hat.

She has drummers made of just about everything — wood, seeds, felt, porcelain, metal, pipe cleaners, plaster of Paris, crepe paper and even an apple from Appalachia, Among the 43 countries represented are drummers from Thailand, Argentina, Ecuador, Guatemala, Poland

Czechoslovakia, and African drummers that wear rings about their long necks. The tallest is a 14-inch Mexican lady made of reeds, and the oldest one, from South America, is made of clay.

Although Miss Mayer buys drumbeaters in flea markets and has also found the United Nations' gift shop a good source, she likes to find them in the country of origin, one reason she is partial to five she acquired in Colombia.

"When I go into any store, I usually head for a boutique where you can often find uousual things, but I have received many from friends, the most recent a cobalt blue standing poodle from the estate of Amy Vanderbilt," she says.

Any collection of small objects exposed to view must be kept dusted, which may be the most difficult part of collecting. Few collectors will permit anyone to dust a collection, and Miss Mayer is no exception. She does it berself, so the ritual takes place only about once a month.

She has found the drammer she couldn't buy. The drammer boy is part of a stained glass window in a hotel

Announce Annual Marshall Home Tour

An innovative look at houses in process of restoration and six "first-time" houses will be the highlights of historic Marshall's 13th annual Historic Home Tour, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 11 and 12.

The event is sponsored by the Marshall Historical Society with the connecation of 35 civic. social, fraternal, and religiou organizations.

Billed as a "Bicentennial Celebration," the tour will fea-ture a total of 13 structures open to the public. These will include vate homes already res tored, three homes, and an 1835 hotel in process of restoration, and the city's three quasi-public historic buildings: The "al-most" Governor's Mansion, (1839), Honolulu house (1860) and Capital Hill school (1960).

The tour calls particular attention to the little city's (population 7,250) Bicentennial projects including a $50,000 restoration of the famed Brooks femorial fountain raised by the Chamber of Commerce's Bicentennial committee by public

With the thought that the seeing restoration in process as uell as completed four owners have agreed to go on tour. These will include: National House Inn (1835); Joy-Bryant house, an 1844 Italianate, and the George and Kinter homes, both Queen Annes hallt in IRRS Of these four, only the Joy-Bryant house has ever been shown before (1974).

Among the six homes already restored are three "firsttimers:" the Machek house, an 1868 Gothie Revival; the Sullivan house, an 1858 Gothic revival, and the Swift house on shown in 1972, include the C.E. Brooks house, Greek Revival (1838); C.W. Brooks house, Creighton Sherman house, Gothle Revival (1857). The 13 buildings range in age from 84 to 141. They represent an outstanding cross-section of 19th century architecture, particularly from the 1840-70 period when Marshall was at its 19th century highpoint. For the seventh year the event will be run on both days of the weekend in order to let visitors enjoy the unstructured tour along Marshall's tree-shaded streets at their leisure. Hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Satur day, Sept. 11, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12.

The tour also recreates the atmosphere of the last century with such events as church luncheons, bake sales, antique

Although Miss Mayer buys drumbeaters in flea markets and has also found the United Nations' gift shop a good source, she likes to find them in the country of origin, one reason she is partial to five she acquired in Colombia.

"When I go into any store, I usually head for a boutique where you can often find unusual things, but I have received many from friends, the most recent a cobalt blue standing poodle from the estate of Amy Vanderbilt," she says.

Any collection of small objects exposed to view must be kept dusted, which may be the most difficult part of collecting. Few collectors will permit anyone to dust a collection, and Miss Mayer is no exception. She does it herself, so the ritual takes place only about once a

Announce Annual Marshall Home Tour

An innovative look at houses in process of restoration and six "first-time" houses will be the highlights of historic Marshall's 13th annual Historic Home Tour, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 11 and 12.

The event is sponsored by the Marshall Historical Society with the cooperation of 35 civic, social, fraternal, and religious organizations.

Billed as a "Bicentennial Celebration," the tour will feature a total of 13 structures open to the public. These will include six private homes already restored, three homes, and an 1835 hotel in process of restoration, and the city's three quasi-public historic buildings: The "almost" Governor's Mansion, (1839), Honolulu house (1860), and Capital Hill school (1860).

The tour calls particular attention to the little city's (population 7.250) Bicentennial projects including a $50,000 restoration of the famed Brooks Memorial fountain raised by the Chamber of Commerce's Bicentennial committee by public subscription.

The historical society's main project was a new exterior for Honolulu House that involved painting, reroofing, and chimnev rebuilding.

The Daughters of the American Revolution's Governor's Mansion has also been painted with the assistance of the Marshall Jaycees. Capitol Hill school was totally restored a year ago. With the thought that the seeing restoration in process as well as completed, four owners have agreed to go on tour. These will include: National House Inn (1835); Joy-Bryant house, an 1844 Italianate, and the George and Kinter homes, both Queen Annes built in 1886. Of these four, only the Joy-Bryant house has ever been shown before

Among the six homes already timers:" the Machek house, an 1868 Gothic Revival; the Sullivan house, an 1858 Gothic revival, and the Swift house, an 1892 Romanesque. The other three restored homes, all last shown in 1972, include the C.E. Brooks house, Greek Revival (1838): C.W. Brooks house.

public would be interested in Greek Revival (1841), and the Creighton Sherman house, Gothic Revival (1857).

> The 13 buildings range in age from 84 to 141. They represent an outstanding cross-section of 19th century architecture, particularly from the 1840-70 period when Marshall was at its 19th century highpoint

For the seventh year the event will be run on both days of the weekend in order to let visitors enjoy the unstructured tour along Marshall's tree-shaded streets at their leisure. Hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12.

The tour also recreates the atmosphere of the last century with such events as church luncheons, bake sales, antique sale, an arts and crafts fair (with over 110 crafts people), band concerts, an ice cream social, a Civil War encampment, barbershop quartet singing, and numerous other events recalling the customs and pleasures of 100 years ago.

Collateral feature of this year's tour will be a Grand Bicentennial Parade at noon each day. Highlight of the Sunday parade will be the recreation of the 5th Michigan Regiment Band from Howell.

Raise Sights

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15year-old girl who is considered cute but not beautiful.

I have a problem I can't talk about to anyone. They'd think I was trying to be a sex-pot, but I'm not. What I want to do is build up my bust.

Do you know of any exercises I can take that might help? How about the creams I see adver-tised in the magazines? Are they any good? How long will it be before people start noticing me? — Not Flat But Needing

Dear Not Flat But Needing: Do you mean noticing YOU - or them? My advice is to raise your sights a few inches. A young girl's personality and how she relates to people are of far greater significance than her manunary dimensions. There is very little evidence that the bust-developing exercises do any good and the creams you see advertised are a rip-off.

Adults, particularly, can benefit from a good breakfast without ac-cumulating high calories or cholesterol content. then, makes possible the desire for a moderate, sensible lunch.

The same rule applies to people who falsely believe they are dieting by skipping lunch. By the time they return home, they are so hungry that a reasonable dinner is not sufficient to satisfy their appetites. An excellent suggestion has been made by many nutritionists. An attractive salad served before the main course usually takes the edge off the appetite and reduces the possibility of second helpings. Second helpings mean a second dinner, and thus more meal is a great morale booster to a map or a woman locked away in an institution. We also recognize that the department is responsible for the health and well-being of those persons

Back in the days when James Cagney was doing time in the "big house," bread and water seemed to be the daily fare occasionally a plate of beans broke up the monotony.

The theory was, apparently, that people who broke the laws didn't deserve any better and that depriving convicts of good food was all part of the punish ment. That's hardly the case anymore - modern correctional systems throughout the country are committed to the goal of providing nutritionally balanced meals to all prisoners. And, they are doing it. In Michigan, at a cost of about $1.13 a person per day, prisoners are getting in excess of 80 grams of food protein and 3,400 calories of energy.

Food service in correctional facilities is big business in Michigan. During 1976, Michigan. During 1976, Michigan prisons will serve over 12 million meals to men and women prisoners.

For a luncheon menu this might mean 10,000 grilled hot dogs; for breakfast, it might mean over 13,000 pancakes. Such meal components constitute just a small percentage of the average daily fare within Michigan's seven prisons and 12 corrections camps

Recently, the Department of Corrections began a project to improve food quality as well as financial controls in its food service. This involves using a cyclical menu adjusted on a seasonal basis. Backing up the menu is a complete recipe catalog that will be entered into a computer to correlate recipe extensions and inventory control. It is estimated that the computer will save the depart-ment in excess of $250,000 a year once the system is fully opera-service directors in the individual institutions to make preferences and eliminates the "if - it's - Tuesday - it - must - be - meatloaf" syndrome of cycle menus. It also allows for regional variety in preparation because what works at the 5,200-mon Jackson Prison is not necessarily applicable at Camp Ojibway, 10 miles from the Wisconsin border in the Upper Peninsula.

The system allows for food

"Michigan prisoners will never tell us that the food in an institution tastes like momma's home-cooking," said Robert Weyand, a corrections staff member who heads up the menu system project, "but for most, the meals served are much more nutritious than the fare they were getting before they came to prison.

I have a problem I can't talk about to anyone. They'd think I was trying to be a sex-pot, but I'm not. What I want to do is build up my bust.

Do you know of any exercises I can take that might help? How about the creams I see advertised in the magazines? Are they any good? How long will it be before people start noticing me? - Not Flat But Needing

Dear Not Flat But Needing: Do you mean noticing YOU - or them? My advice is to raise your sights a few inches. A young girl's personality and how she relates to people are of far greater significance than her mammary dimensions. There is very little evidence that the bust-developing exercises do any good and the creams you see advertised are a rip-off.

Michigan Prison Menus Nutritionally Balanced

meal is a great morale booster to a man or a woman locked

Back in the days when James Cagney was doing time in the 'big house," bread and water seemed to be the daily fare occasionally a plate of beans broke up the monotony.

The theory was, apparently, that people who broke the laws didn't deserve any better and that depriving convicts of good food was all part of the punishment.

That's hardly the case anymore - modern correctional systems throughout the country are committed to the goal of providing nutritionally balanced meals to all prisoners. And, they are doing it. In Michigan, at a cost of about $1.13 a person per day, prisoners are getting in excess of 80 grams of food protein and 3,400 calories of energy. Food service in correctional facilities is big business in Michigan. During 1976, Michigan prisons will serve over 12 million meals to men and women prisoners. For a luncheon menu this might mean 10,000 grilled hot dogs; for breakfast, it might mean over 13,000 pancakes. Such meal components constitute just a small percentage of the average daily fare within Michigan's seven prisons and 12 corrections camps Recently, the Department of Corrections began a project to improve food quality as well as financial controls in its food service. This involves using a cyclical menu adjusted on a seasonal basis. Backing up the menu is a complete recipe catalog that will be entered into a computer to correlate recipe extensions and inventory control. It is estimated that the computer will save the department in excess of $250,000 a year once the system is fully operational. The system allows for food service directors in the individual institutions to make menu decisions based on local preferences and eliminates the "if - it's - Tuesday - it - must - be - meatloaf" syndrome of cycle menus. It also allows for regional variety in preparation because what works at the 5.200-man Jackson Prison is not necessarily applicable at Camp Ojibway, 10 miles from the Wisconsin border in the Upper Peninsula. "Michigan prisoners will never tell us that the food in an institution tastes like momma's home-cooking," said Robert Weyand, a corrections staff member who heads up the menu system project, "but for most, the meals served are much more nutritious than the fare they were getting before they came to prison." "We realize that an attrac-

State College Records Public

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - The financial records of state colleges are public records and are open to public inspection, the state attorney general has ruled. A college or university can adopt "reasonable restrictions" to protect the records but cannot keep them a secret, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Wednesday. Kelley referred to past court decisions and his own 1973 ruling in answering a query from state Rep. Howard Wolpe, Dividamazoo.
Wolpe asked for the opinion in relation to collective bargaining disputes at Western Michigan University. A professors' associa-tion and the local branch of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes had tried to gain access to the financial records of the university.

Convict Gets Jobless Pay

DETROIT (AP) - The Michigan Employment Security Commission is investigating a complaint that a convicted felon drew jobless benefits while in jail, a MESC spokesman said Wednesday potesis nenetits while in jail, a MEM spotesiman sain wednessing. The prisoner's former employer, Lois flurley, said she had filed a formal complaint concerning the payment of $168 to 27-year-old Kevin Reese, a Wayne County jail inmate. Reese was sentenced to up to 3 years in Southeastern Michigan Prison in Jackson last April for attempted armed robbery. He was recently transferred to the Wayne County fail to await trial on another charge of conto the wayne County fail to await trial on another charge of coc-caling stolen property, authorities said. Mrs. Hurley said Reese had worked as a truck driver at her Highland Park service station for 15 months during 1874-75. On June 25, she was told the agency had paid Reese $186, she said. "It's the most outrageous thing I ever heard ot," said Mrs. Hurley. She said she and her haisband had fired Reese after he was convicted of stealing tires from cars in the !lighland Park police pound.

Two Million Refunds

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Consumers Power Co. will begin mailing over two million refund checks to 1979-71 customers by Nov. 1 after final details were worked out in court Wednesday. The mailing may be the largest in history made from a giant utility to its customers. The refunds, which will cost the company some $35 million, represent money it improperly collected on gas and electric bills between January 1970 and December 1971 as a federal income tax surcharge. According to preliminary estimates, residential customers who took Consumers gas and electric service during the full 34 months will get refunds of $10 to $15.

NOW Rates Candidates

DETROIT (AP) - Three of Michigan's eight U.S. Senate candidates rate high on women's rights issues, according to a Na-tional Organization for Women report. The report, released Wed-nesday by the Midwestern Wayne County chapter of NOW, gives high marks to Democrats Richard Austin and Donald Riegle Jr. and Republican Marvin L. Esch. The assessment was based on responses to a NOW questionnaire and Esch's and Riegle's congressional voting records. Thomas Brennan, a Republican, gave the most consistently negative responses to questions on women's rights, the report said. Republicans Deane Baker and Robert Huber and Democrat James O'Hara did not return the questionnaire, but the report said both Buber and O'Hara had poor congressional voting records on key ferminat issues.

Lawyers' Malpractice Fees

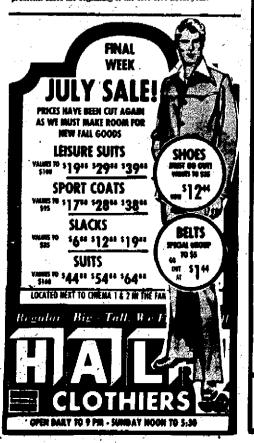

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - The maximum contingency fee for lawyers in negligence medical malpractice cases is 40 per cent on the first $5,000, according to the State Bar of Michigan. A previous report incorrectly indicated contingency fees for attorneys handling medical matpractice cases ranged as high as 40 per cent nanoung treatment in appraising cases ranges as high as 40 per cent of a $500,000 settlement. The Michigan Supreme Court last May adopted a State Bur plan to limit such fees. Besides the 40 per cent limit on the first $5,000 awarded, limits also are 35 per cent of the next $20,000, 25 per cent on the next $225,000 and 20 per cent of awards from $250,000 to $500,000. The limit on settlements above $500,000 is 10 per cent.

Prisoners 'Strike'-

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Four-fifths of the 900 immates employed in State Industries Co. plants at Southern Michigan Prison walked aff the jobs Wednesday to protest nonpayment of quarterly bonuses, prison officials said. The 478 prisoners were returned to their cells following the work stoppage, officials said. Prison spokesmen said about 315 prisoners left their jobs Tuesday after officials amounced there would be no dividends for the quarter ending June 30 herause of reduced orders and cakes. quarter ending June 30 because of reduced orders and sales. Under their agreements with State Industries, the prisoners receive quarterly bourses for increased production of goods sold to state agencies.

State Aid Delay

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Because of state cash shortages, August state school aid payment will be made in two installments instead of one, school officials announced. One half of the $129.1 million payment will be made next Monday, while the balance will be sent to local school districts Aug. 23, the state Board of Education said. The August state school aid payment is the fifth bimonthly payment that has been split because of cash flow problems since the beginning of the 1975-1976 fiscal year.

Milliken Nixes Connally

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken and state Republican Chairman William McLaughlin say they will urge President Ford not to select John Connaily to be his running mate in nominated next month. McLaughlin said Wednesday that Con-nally's ties to the Nixon administraton and his past indictment would give Democrats a chance to raise the issue of Watergate in the fall campaign. Both Millilken and McLaughlin also indicated they are troubled by Connally's reputation as a back-room, behindthe scenes politician which would clash with Food's image as an open, honest president.

Highway Study Protest

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Highway Commission has authorized studies that could lead to 14 million in highway improvements near Battle Creek, despite complaints they are ustaxpayers' money to subsidize a private business. The move ing taxpayers money to substitute a private outsides. The finite came amile the speculation that an Ohio firm may build a $30 million amusement park on a site in the outskirts of the city. Commission Chairman Peter Fletcher criticized the authorization, saying the commission was "in effect subsidizing private stockholders with state money." Fletcher suggested negotiations be carried on with the amusement park corporation "to see if we can recapture some of the expense." Cedar Point, Inc. of Sandusky, Ohio is believed to be on the verge of announcing details of the Battle Creek park plan, though spokesmen insisted on Wednesday that no firm

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — General Motors Corp. automobiles will cost more in 1977, get better mileage and be smaller, says the president of General Motors. Elliot Estes said his firm's cars "are going to have a more efficient package in 1977 which will Improve fuel economy but not take anything away from the customer." The GM president said the 1977 GM cars will be smaller on the outside but provide for the same number of passengers inside. Customer demand and fuel economy legislation is the reason for the smaller automobiles, he said. "We have told our fleet customers that we will assure them that increases will not be more than six per cent and probably less," Estes soit.

Night Rates

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Consumers Power Co. says a survey of its biggest industrial and commercial customers shows most are unlikely to switch to night hours if electric rates are raised during the day. Some major electric users said they would seriously consider leaving the state or closing down if electric rates during the day — when demand is highest — were even double nighttime rates. Consumers said. The company said the survey, submitted rates, Consumers said. The company said the survey, submitted Wodnesday to the Public Service Commissioner, covered 118 representative industrial and commercial customers, including 32 of its largest users. Of the companies, 72 said they would not change to nighttime bours if the price per kilowatt of nighttime or "off-peak" electricity was four-tenths of a cent lower per kilowatt hour than daylime prices. Another eight, said they would make "changes," including more conservation efforts. Two firms said they would think about moving to another state.

State College Records Public

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - The financial records of state colleges are public records and are open to public inspection, the state attorney general has ruled. A college or university can adopt "reasonable restrictions" to protect the records but cannot keep them a secret, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Wednesday. Kelley referred to past court decisions and his own 1973 ruling in answering a query from state Rep. Howard Wolpe, DKalamazoo. Wolpe asked for the opinion in relation to collective bargaining disputes at Western Michigan University. A professors' association and the local branch of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes had tried to gain access to the financial records of the university.

Convict Gets Jobless Pay

DETROIT (AP) - The Michigan Employment Security Commission is investigating a complaint that a convicted felon drew jobless benefits while in jail, a MESC spokesman said Wednesday. The prisoner's former employer, Lois Hurley, said she had filed a formal complaint concerning the payment of $166 to 27-year-old Kevin Reese, a Wayne County jail inmate. Reese was sentenced to up to 5 years in Southeastern Michigan Prison in Jackson last April for attempted armed robbery. He was recently transferred to the Wayne County jail to await trial on another charge of concealing stolen property, authorities said. Mrs. Hurley said Reese had worked as a truck driver at her Highland Park service station for 15 months during 1974-75. On June 25, she was told the agency had paid Reese $166, she said. "It's the most outrageous thing I ever heard of," said Mrs. Hurley. She said she and her husband had fired Reese after he was convicted of stealing tires from cars in the 'lighland Park police pound.

Two Million Refunds

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Consumers Power Co. will begin mailing over two million refund checks to 1970-71 customers by Nov. 1 after final details were worked out in court Wednesday. The mailing may be the largest in history made from a giant utility to its customers. The refunds, which will cost the company some $35 million, represent money it improperly collected on gas and electric bills between January 1970 and December 1971 as a federal income tax surcharge. According to preliminary estimates, residential customers who took Consumers gas and electric service during the full 24 months will get refunds of $10 to $15.

NOW Rates Candidates

DETROIT (AP) - Three of Michigan's eight U.S. Senate candidates rate high on women's rights issues, according to a National Organization for Women report. The report, released Wednesday by the Midwestern Wayne County chapter of NOW, gives high marks to Democrats Richard Austin and Donald Riegle Jr. and Republican Marvin L. Esch. The assessment was based on responses to a NOW questionnaire and Esch's and Riegle's congressional voting records. Thomas Brennan, a Republican, gave the most consistently negative responses to questions on women's rights, the report said. Republicans Deane Baker and Robert Huber and Democrat James O'Hara did not return the questionnaire, but the report said both Huber and O'Hara had poor congressional voting records on key feminist issues.

Lawyers' Malpractice Fees

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - The maximum contingency fee for lawyers in negligence medical malpractice cases is 40 per cent on the first $5,000, according to the State Bar of Michigan. A previous report incorrectly indicated contingency fees for attorneys handling medical malpractice cases ranged as high as 40 per cent of a $500,000 settlement. The Michigan Supreme Court last May adopted a State Bar plan to limit such fees. Besides the 40 per cent limit on the first $5,000 awarded, limits also are 35 per cent of the next $20,000, 25 per cent on the next $225,000 and 20 per cent of awards from $250,000 to $500,000. The limit on settlements above $500,000 is 10 per cent.

Prisoners 'Strike'

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) - Four-fifths of the 600 inmates Prison walked off the jobs Wednesday to protest nonpayment of quarterly bonuses, prison officials said. The 478 prisoners were returned to their cells following the work stoppage, officials said. Prison spokesmen said about 315 prisoners left their jobs Tuesday after officials announced there would be no dividends for the quarter ending June 30 because of reduced orders and sales. Under their agreements with State Industries, the prisoners receive quarterly bonuses for increased production of goods sold to

State Aid Delay

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Because of state cash shortages, August state school aid payment will be made in two installments instead of one, school officials announced. One half of the $129.1 million payment will be made next Monday, while the balance will be sent to local school districts Aug. 23, the state Board of Education said. The August state school aid payment is the fifth bimonthly payment that has been split because of cash flow problems since the beginning of the 1975-1976 fiscal year.

Milliken Nixes Connally

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Gov. William Milliken and state Republican Chairman William McLaughlin say they will urge President Ford not to select John Connally to be his running mate if nominated next month. McLaughlin said Wednesday that Connally's ties to the Nixon administraton and his past indictment would give Democrats a chance to raise the issue of Watergate in the fall campaign. Both Milliken and McLaughlin also indicated they are troubled by Connally's reputation as a back-room, behindthe scenes politician which would clash with Ford's image as an open, honest president.

Highway Study Protest

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - The state Highway Commission has authorized studies that could lead to $4 million in highway improvements near Battle Creek, despite complaints they are using taxpayers' money to subsidize a private business. The move came amid speculation that an Ohio firm may build a $30 million amusement park on a site in the outskirts of the city. Commission Chairman Peter Fletcher criticized the authorization, saying the commission was "in effect subsidizing private stockholders with state money." Fletcher suggested negotiations be carried on with the amusement park corporation "to see if we can recapture some of the expense." Cedar Point, Inc. of Sandusky, Ohio is believed to be on the verge of announcing details of the Battle Creek park plan, though spokesmen insisted on Wednesday that no firm

Civil Rights Complaints

LANSING. Mich. (AP) - With three months left in this extended fiscal year, the state civil rights department has received 20 per cent more discrimination complaints than in fiscal 1975. Ruth Rasmussen, director, said Wednesday that the department received 4,671 complaints from July 1, 1975, to June 30, 1976, compared to 3,760 for the corresponding period a year ago. The state's previous fiscal years ended on June 30. But a new law extends the current fiscal 1976 three months to Sept. 30 to help balance the budget. The director said that the agency closed out 4,745 complaints from July 1, 1975, to June 30, 1976, 18 per cent more than the 4,033 closings recording in fiscal 1975. In a report presented to the Civil Rights Commission, she said that 32 per cent of the complaints closed as of June 30 resulted in favorable settlements for the persons ffling the bias complaints. Monetary awards in this period totaled $3.8 million compared to $3.29 million during fiscal 1975.

She told police where to find the girls when she entered Detroit General Hospital on July 21 to be treated for injuries from the pistol whipping.

Police said the girls stayed where they were hiding, even without their guard, because they were too terrified to go out onto the streets again.

The five men were arrested between July 22 and 25.

Beavers and Pickens were arraigned on four counts each of first-degree criminal sexual conduct. Stockdale, Rias and Burns were arraigned on charges of conspiracy to pander, and Stockdale and Rias were also charged in the assault on the 22-year-old woman.

School Spared From Lawsuits Against Builder

Benton Harbor Area schools have deposited $40,267 with Berrien Circuit court to free the district of any responsibility in a number of suits filed by creditors against a contractor who remodeled the high school auditorium.

The district won a restraining order under a circuit court action in which the court will act

Schweiker Wasn't The First

WASHINGTON (AP) -William Ruckelshaus, a former deputy attorney general, told reporters Wednesday that he received an offer to be presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's running mate three weeks ago - an offer accepted Monday by Sen. Richard Schweiker.

A Reagan spokesman denied Wednesday night that any specific offer had been made, saying only that two top Reagan campaign officials talked to Ruckelshaus to see if he was interested in running on a Reagan ticket.

Reagan made an extraordinary political move in naming Schweiker, a Pennsylvania liberal, to be his vice presidential running mate if he can wrestle the GOP nomination away from President Ford.

Ruckelshaus, who resigned his Department of Justice post along with Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson in 1974 rather than follow President Richard Nixon's order to fire Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, said an offer that he become Reagan's running mate was made to him by Reagan confidants John Sears and L. Keith Bulen.

as an intermediary and creditors of the contractor can decide among themselves who gets how much instead of including the district in suits.

The action by the district names Hayes & Sons Construction Co., of 873 East Empire avenue, Benton Harbor, and 23 of Hayes' creditors as defendants.

The $40,267 deposited with the court is money the district says it owes Hayes.

Hayes in 1974 was awarded a $193,302 contract for general construction in the auditorium remodeling. The project was completed in November, 19751A number of subcontractors have filed suits against Hayes for nonpayment. The school district claims Hayes' creditors are due more than what the district owes Hayes.

Judge William S. White explained that since the district has deposited the $40,267 with the court, the creditors can establish their claims in circuit court and then decide who gets how much.

White issued a temporary restraining order stopping Hayes' creditors from filing any garnishments against the school district during the pendency of the case or until a further circuit court order. He also set Sept. 7 as the date for a hearing to determine whether the restraining order should be changed to an injunction. He noted the deposit absolves the district of any responsibility in garnishment suits filed against Hayes.

Clanton 'Makes Good Impression'

WASHINGTON - David A. Clanton, formerly of Berrien Springs, made a favorable impression on a subcommittee of the Senate Commerce committee when he appeared Wednesday as a nominee)for the Federal Trade Commission, according to capitol observers.

Sen. Frank Moss (D-Utah) said the committee expects to meet soon in executive session to vote on a recommendation to the Commerce committee on nomination of Clanton. and he pledged to work fairly with consumers and business interests in all matters before the FTC if his nomination is confirmed by the Senate. Commerce committee members know him well because he was minority staff counsel for the committee from 1971 to last January when he became legislative assistant to Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Mich), assistant Senate minority leader.

Clanton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clanton, Berrien Springs. He is a graduate of Andrews university and Wayne State Law school.

"Michigan's new law goes far beyond existing protection and guarantees provided by federal legislation which relates only to employment," Milliken said.

Under the law, sponsored by Sen. John Otterbacher, D-Grand cannol employers refuse to hire, promote or classify qualified people because of handicans when the handicaps are not related to ability to per-form the job or when adaptive devices or aids may be used.

The new law provides han-dicapped people the same protection against discrimination granted others on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or sex.

The new law also applies to labor organizations, which may not exclude the handleapped unrelated to his or her holding a job which would entitle them to membership.

The law prohibits denial of public accommodations, such as access to facilities and services because of a handicap or an adaptive device. Educational institutions are forbidden to discriminate against the han-

Says Nation Needs Fighter

Riegle Runs Hard For Senate

By SUSAN AGER Associated Press Writer

FLINT, Mich. (AP) - When he gives a campaign talk, Donald Riegle says he's a fighter. Pounding on the podium, he adds: "What this country and this state need in the Senate is a fighter.'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, July 29, the 211th day of 1976. There are 155 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1914, a phone conversation between New York and San Francisco marked the beginning of transcontinental telephone service. On this date:

In 1729, Carolina became a royal province of England. In 1883, the Italian dictator, Benito Mussolini, was born in Dovia, Italy. In 1940, in World War II, Germany's all-out air blitz against Britain began. In 1959, Hawaii held its first election as a state and elected the first Orientals to be seated in the U.S. Congress.

In 1967, 134 American sailors died in a fire aboard the aircraft carrier Forrestal off North Vietnam.

In 1971, the U.S. Apollo 15 spacecraft was in orbit around the moon as preparations were being made for a lunar landing. Ten years ago: The British government froze wages, prices and dividends in an attempt to cope with an economic crisis.

Five years ago: The United called anew for immediate negotiations on a general, internationally controlled ceasefire in Indochina

O.ie year ago: The Organization of American States ended an embargo against Cuba that had begun in 1964.

Today's birthdays: Writer Owen Lattimore is 76 years old. Dancer and choreographer Paul Taylor is 46. Thought for today: Dignity does not consist of possessing honors, but in deserving them Aristotle, Greek philosopher, 384-382 B.C. Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, American troops from Virginia and North and South Carolina moved against Cherokee Indians along the North Carolina frontier, fearful that the Indians were in alliance with the Bri-

THE SURRENDER ceremony at Yorktown on Oct. 19, 1781, was sheer pageantry. The British army in bright uniforms marched out between contrasting lines of ragged Continentals and elegantly tailored French troops. Their colors cased and marching to a doleful tune on drums and fife, the British were surrendered to Gen. Benjamin Lincoln who ordered the column to a field where they lay down their arms. Yorktown proved to be the conclusive military event that brought England to the peace table, The World Almanmac verifies.

midnight or 1 a.m. every day, friends say. "Don is running harder than any other candidate," says a close associate. Riegle is a shouter. He wears his shirt sleeves rolled up and his hair mussed. He insists he cares intensely about "the problems that keep people awake at night" and seems continually angry that they haven't been solved.

The 38-year-old Republicanturned-Democrat says he has raised nearly $300,000, more than has ever been raised in any statewide Democratic primary campaign.

He's saturated the Detroit market and several outstate areas with advertising to overcome the handicap of a scarcely known and tough-to-remember name, convinced he can win if he does.

His campaign coffer includes $6,000 in $1 contributions, he says. But at least another $39,550 comes from outside Michigan, including money he collected in a day with the California delegation at the Democratic National Conven-

A recent Detroit News poll places Riegle second behind Secretary of State Richard Austin by 27 percentage points. Riegle says his own poll shows him only three points behind.

A former IBM employe who quit in 1963 when the firm wouldn't stop work the day John F. Kennedy was shot, Riegle is making what some say are political faux pas to get the Senate seat.

His press secretary, Dave Taylor, quit just three weeks before the primary in what was, in part, a philosophical dissatisfaction with Riegle's use of poll data and other information.

'We didn't always have the information to satisfy my own conscience that what was being said in the campaign was actually accurate," said Taylor.

In a surprising disclosure, Riegle also said recently that he voted for Democratic Sen. Philip Hart in 1970 while Riegle was still a Republican and after Riegle had unsuccessfully sought the GOP Senate nomination to oppose Hart. Riegle had pledged his support and his vote in February, 1970, to the Republican "consensus" candidate Lenore Romney.

In a recent interview, Riegle also said he sought the 1970 nomination because Hart "had not taken an active and open position" on the Vietnam war. But records show Hart clearly against it by 1968. And although in 1970 Riegle publicly criticized Hart for leading the antiNixon forces, Riegle now says "Phil

Hart's example of independent thinking (should be) carried forward.

Riegle admits he changes his mind, including the ultimate reversal from Republican to Democratic party in 1973. He says he switched in disgust with the Nixon White House.

"Voters shouldn't be surprised if Don Riegle says one thing then officially acts in another way. He flows with the mood," says a close acquaintance. "He grabs onto an issue that he thinks is going to go big, then he'll shout about it a lot. He'll raise hell.

"He likes people to think he'll charge in with a buzz saw and take on overwhelming odds."

Riegle, whose father was once Flint mayor, first won election to Congress in 1966 by heavy margins in his heavily Democratic, blue-collar district and has had local UAW and AFL-CIO support both as a Republican and Democrat.

Riegle's key issue, what he calls the "number one moral imperative," is poverty among the elderly. He says he has introduced legislation to guarantee a minimum $4,000 income for a single person over 65 and $5,500 for a couple. The measure would cost $6 billion a year or the equivalent of three Trident submarines, he says.

Defense spending can be cut by $10 billion, and the B1 bomber is unnecessary, he says. "With Detroit laying off 1.000 policemen, we have to change our priorities and shift these funds to the cities."

He says he was the original sponsor of legislation to repeal the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, a move that was the beginning of the end of Congressional support for the Vietnam War.

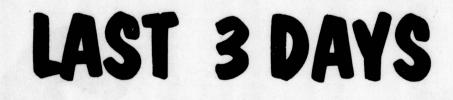

He says he co-authored the War Powers Act that requires a Congressional vote to authorize more than 60 days of American involvement abroad.

He says he also wrote legislation passed in 1973 to upgrade neighborhood schools by opening them to other uses when classes are not in session.

His 1972 bestselling book "O Congress," was a scathing attack on Congress and politics as usual. In it he identified then Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter as a "first-rate unknown" who would "knock off the entrenched old-style politicians."

"In the face of GM's stagger ing profits, its demands that workers surrender hard-earned gains or accept a standatill conunconscionable." clared UAW Vice President Irving Bhiestone, "There is no reason why GM cannot work out an equitable settlement that provides a fair share to its workers.

GM carner was ween rejection.
UAW demands for improved job security, benefits and wages.
GM Chairman Thomas Murphy and President Elliott Estes said they were optimistic the industry would grow even. the industry would grow even stronger over the next year, but stronger over the next year, but noted their forecast "is clouded by the uncertainty" over con-tract talks with the UAW.

"It is imperative that any settlement avoid contributing to the dangerous potential for further inflation," they warned. The two executives said the pace of economic recovery in the United States was spearheaded by the auto in-dustry and continued at "a sus-tainable rate" during the second quarter. "Gains were seen in real personal income and employment, the inflation rate was generally stable, and consumer confidence remained firm," they said.

Despite the compuny's record showing, the executives noted that current earnings were below those of past years when adjusted for inflation. They also defended the need to improve profits to finance a five-year, $5 billion spending program begun last year to redesign the com-pany's fleet of cars to make them smaller, lighter and more fuel-efficient.

"Earnings must be improved further to provide the capital needed in the business and the dividends which must be paid...if our corporation is to remain strong," they said.

Analysts attributed GM's record profits to higher unit sales industrywide, an increase in the company's market share, a strong comeback in sales of high-profit large cars, an easing of cost increases combined with effective cost-cutting controls, and a recovery in overseas markets that is paralleling that in the United States.

GM's per share carnings in the quarter were $3.16, compared with $1.14 a year ago and the previous record of $2.84 set in the first quarter of 1973. Profits as a percentage of sales were 7.3 per cent — double that of a year ago, but down from 8.3 per cent in 1973.

Unit car and truck sales in the United States during the quarter were 1.71 million, compared with 1.24 million a year ago and 1.79 in 1973. Canadian and overseas sales in the period were 656,000, compared with 549,000 last year.

For the first half, CM had voridwide vehicle sales of 4.49 million units, compared with 3 is million last year 11 S. sales of 3.25 million were up from 2.18 million, while sales outside the United States rose to 1.23 million, compared with 981,090.

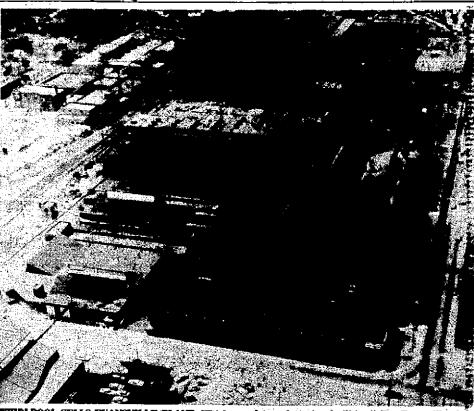

Per share earnings for the six nonths were $5.94, compared with $1.34 in 1975.

"In the face of GM's staggering profits, its demands that workers surrender hard-earned gains or accept a standstill contract is unconscionable," declared UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone. "There is no reason why GM cannot work out an equitable settlement that provides a fair share to its workers.'

GM earlier this week rejected UAW demands for improved job security, benefits and wages.

GM Chairman Thomas Murphy and President Elliott Estes said they were optimistic the industry would grow even stronger over the next year, but noted their forecast "is clouded by the uncertainty" over contract talks with the UAW.

"It is imperative that any settlement avoid contributing to the dangerous potential for further inflation," they warned.

The two executives said the pace of economic recovery in the United States was spearheaded by the auto industry and continued at "a sustainable rate" during the second quarter. "Gains were seen in real personal income and employment, the inflation rate was generally stable, and consumer confidence remained firm," they said.

Despite the company's record showing, the executives noted that current earnings were below those of past years when adjusted for inflation. They also defended the need to improve profits to finance a five-year, $5 billion spending program begun last year to redesign the company's fleet of cars to make them smaller, lighter and more fuel-efficient

"Earnings must be improved further to provide the capital needed in the business and the dividends which must be paid...if our corporation is to remain strong," they said.

Analysts attributed GM's record profits to higher unit sales industrywide, an increase in the company's market share, a strong comeback in sales of high-profit large cars, an easing of cost increases combined with effective cost-cutting controls, and a recovery in overseas markets that is paralleling that in the United States.

GM's per share earnings in the quarter were $3.16, compared with $1.14 a year ago and the previous record of $2.84 set in the first quarter of 1973. Profits as a percentage of sales were 7.3 per cent - double that of a year ago, but down from 8.3 per cent in 1973.

Unit car and truck sales in the United States during the quarter were 1.71 million, compared with 1.24 million a year ago and 1.79 in 1973. Canadian and overseas sales in the period were 656,000, compared with 549,000 last year.

For the first half, GM had worldwide vehicle sales of 4.49 million units, compared with 3.16 million last year. U.S. sales of 3.25 million were up from 2.18 million, while sales outside the United States rose to 1.23 million, compared with 981,000.

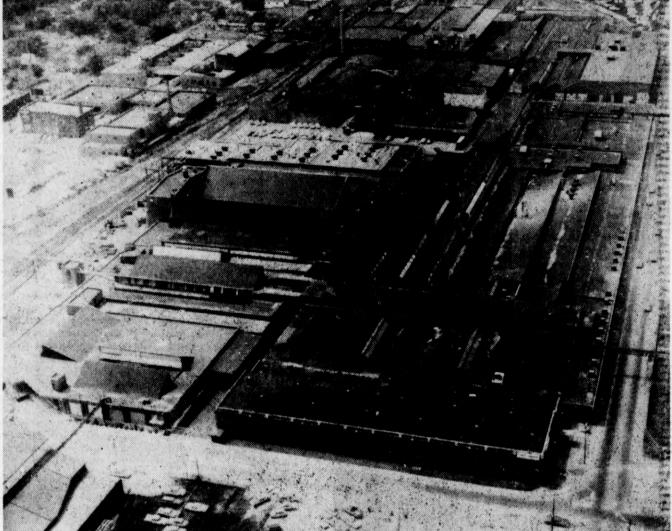

Per share earnings for the six months were $5.94, compared with $1.34 in 1975.

Sugar Ray Not Going Pro

MONTREAL (AP) - There are 18 minutes — no more, maybe less — remaining in the ring career of Sugar Ray Leonard, and then he will hang up his gloves and go to school.

U.S. Eyes Recovery From Gold Shortage

AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) - The United States now is almost hopelessly out of the medals race in the XXI Olympic Games and, in fact, doesn't even have a very good shot at second place.

The Americans, who once dominated these quadriennial celebrations of sports, suffered a gold medal shutout again Wednesday, their third in five days. They have gained only one gold medal since Sunday night and, in that period, have fallen far back of Russia and East Germany.

Russia, which picked up four golds Wednesday, leads with a gold-silver-bronze count of 33-31-23. East Germany has 30-19-18. The United States is a poor third at 22-26-191the trend, however, could be reversed. It's doubtful that America's inspired boxers and somewhat maligned track and field forces can muster enough strength in the closing days of the Games to overtake either of the Communist powers - but they can make it respectable. They could still make it interesting.

The key could come in today's activity. Maxie Parks, Los An-

Rouge, La.; and Herman Frazier, Philadelphia, have promised a 1-2-3 American finish and a shutout of Cuba's Alberto Juantoreno in the men's 400 meters.

"We're ready to run him right out of a medal," said Newhouse. And tonight, big John Tate of Knoxville, Tenn., will take on Cuba's favored Teofilo Stepvenson in a heavyweight boxing

Tate is one of seven Americans who has reached the boxing semifinals. All of them are assured of at least a bronze medals. By comparison, the United States won only three boxing medals in the 1972 Games at Munich.

S TIMING SWISS TIMINE WAS TIMING SWISS TIMING SWISS TIMIN

"We're doing it for Davey," is the boxers' rallying cry. Featherweight Davey Armstrong, Puyallup, Wash., was eliminated in the quarter-finals. His teammates say, quite frankly, he was robbed.

Tate, who suffered an eye cut, put together a strong third round for a 3-2 quarter-final decision over West Germany's Peter Hussing, clearing the way for the important bout with the formidable Stevenson, the defending Olympic champion.

Other Americans in tonight's semis are the fighting Spinks brothers, middleweight Mike and light-heavyweight Leon; light-welter Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md.; lightweight Howard Davis, Glen Cove, N.Y.; bantamweight Charles Mooney an Army sergeant stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and flyweight Leo Randolph, Tacoma, Wash.

The Spinks, like Tate, won quarter-finals Wednesday. The others had advanced earlier. Mike Spinks, from St. Louis, took a 5-0 decision over Ryszard Pasiewicz of Poland.

Leon, a Marine corporal at Camp Lejeune, N.C., had more trouble with the referee than he did Ottomar Sachse of East Germany. Leon scored one knockdown and an easy decision but was warned once for talking to the referee. And when he showed up for the judges' decision wearing a white cap with a red tassle, the referee yanked it off and threw it in a

Americans also have the lead in both men's and women's archery, and, thanks to an excellent ride by Hilda Gurney of Woodland Hills, Calif., moved into second place behind the West Germans in the equestrian dressage team competiton.

The United States, which has won only the basketball gold in the past three days, was limited to two medals Wednesday, a bronze by four-time Olympian Willie Davenport, Baton Rouge, La., in the men's 110-meter hurdles, and a silver by Hawaiians David McFaull and Mike Rothwell in the Tornado class yachts, behind the British boat which already had clinched

Russia's four golds came in men's and women's team handball, women's team foil fencing and in the men's hammer throw, where Yuriy Syedekh set a Games record with a throw of 254 feet, 4 inches and led a Soviet sweep of the medals. Aleksey Spiridnov was second and Anatoliy Beonjerchuk was

The East German women also swept the women's 200, with lightly-regarded Baerbel Eckert winning the gold in 22.37, setting an Olympic record and beating 100-meter gold medalist Annegret Richter and defending champion Renate Stecher.

Anders Garderud of Sweden set a world record of 8:08.02 in the steeplechase and East Germany's Rosemarie Ackermann won the women's high jump with an Olympic record 6-4.

Guy Drut, a French national hero and generally considered his nation's best athlete, won the hurdles in 13.30, followed by the 33-year-old Davenport. It was the first time since the 1928 Games the United States had failed to win a gold medal in

Roberts, Garcia Carry Tigers To 1-0 Triumph

MILWAUKEE (AP) - If Pedro Garcia was gloating, he concealed it well.

The second baseman, a frequent disciplinary problem in three and a fraction seasons as a Milwaukee Brewer, instead preferred to say glowing things of Jerry Augustine, a former teammate he had just beaten with a ninth inning sacrifice fly Wednesday night.

'Special kick? No kick. I no football player. They kick. This is baseball, man," said Garcia, whose drive to left field had scored Alex Johnson from third base to lift the Detroit Tigers over the Brewers 1-0.

Winner Dave Roberts (10-10) scattered five hits, allowed only two Brewers to reach second base and ended the game by getting Gary Sutherland, whom the Tigers had traded for Garcia June 10, to bounce into a force

Augustine (4-8), who had won his previous two starts, carried a string of 20 successive shutout innings into the ninth, which Johnson opened with a single. Johnson took second on a sacrifice and had to stop at third on Bill Freehan's sharp single to left, setting up Garcia's sacrifice fly

"He threw well tonight, really improved," Garcia said of vous before, but it looked like he's concentrating more. He really impressed me. That was a tough loss for him."

Richards sent coach Jim Busby to the mound to get Odom.

"I had a pretty good idea about the second inning that Odom wasn't going to last the whole game," said Richards, and Odom admitted he wasn't surprised when taken out.

'I didn't have my rhythm. I'm glad it happened, though. Maybe if I'd been around the plate all the time, we wouldn't have gotten the no-hitter. I'm glad I was wild," said Odom, 2-0 with Chicago. The no-hitter by the two right-handers, who totaled 11 walks, was the American League's first this year and the fourth combination no-hitter in major league baseball history. It was the first time two pitchers combined to win a nine-inning, no-hit game, not counting a 1917 American League game in which Boston's Babe Ruth was ejected after walking one batter and Ernie Shore went to the mound to get 27 straight outs.

Barrios, 23, from Hermosillo, Mexico, was throwing in the bullpen in the top of the sixth when Jim Spencer broke a 1-1 tie with a home run off A's reliever Paul Lindblad. The A's scored an unearned run in the fourth when Odom walked two and catcher Jim Essian made a throwing error.

"I never knew it was a nohitter until the ninth inning. I looked up at the scoreboard finished off the no-hitter with the help of an outstanding fielding play by second baseman

Jack Brohamer. Bando, Oakland's first hitter in the ninth, hit a slow roller toward second. Brohamer charged the ball, scooped it off the infield grass and flipped it to first to barely get Bando.

In the other American League games, the Kansas City Royals beat the California Angels 3-2 in 15 innings; the Baltimore Orioles nipped the New York Yankees 4-3; the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Boston Red Sox 7-6; the Detroit Tigers blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 1-0 and the Minnesota Twins took a doubleheader from the Texas Rangers 8-5 and 8-0. Dave Nelson's suicide squeeze the 15th inning to give Kansas City its victory over California. Poquette had reached base on Jerry Remy's two-base throwing error to open the 15th. An intentional walk to George Brett and John Mayberry's ground ball moved Poquette to third. Larry Gura, the fifth Royals'

The rally off Doyle Alexander. who flirted with a no-hitter for the third time in five weeks, gave the Orioles a three-game sweep. But the Yanks still ead the runnerup Orioles by 111/2 games in the American League

Larvell Blanks drove in the winning run with a single after slugging a homer and a double to lead Cleveland over Boston.

With the score tied 6-6 in the eighth, Blanks singled to left field off reliever Tom Murphy to score Rick Manning, who had reached on a fielder's choice and stolen second.

Lyman Bostock laced three singles and drove in two runs, leading Minnesota's first-game victory over Texas. Dan Ford hit a home run and drove in three runs and Steve Luebber won his first major league game in five years.

Lakeshore is now 11-4 in one-game lead over Three Oaks (11-6). Lakeshore must face Bridgman Monday for a pair of games. The first game will be pended earlier this year by darkness with the score tied 9-9 in the ninth inning. A regularly scheduled game will follow. If Lakeshore wins both games, its will clinch the division championship.

It took a four-rum fifth inning to carry Lakeshore from behind Wednesday. Craig Shafer had two hits for the winners.

Tim Hoyt pitched a two-hitter in South Haven's win.

South Haven, now 11-5 in the league, took advantage of 15 walks and six Benton Harbor errors in the victory.

Lutheran Romps

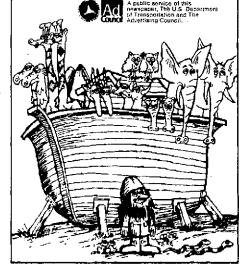

Dave Pesko and Jim Dickson each collected three hits as Grace Lutheran bombed St. Paul's 27-1 Wednesday in a St. Joseph Church league softball game. Winning pitcher Herb Reimers drove in three runs and Dennis Scharnowske slatemed a home run.

New MSU Coaches Optimistic

By JACK WALKDEN Staff Sports Writer

A new atmosphere has taken over the Michigan State athletic

And that positive thinking centers around two new coaches

— Darryl Rogers in football and Jud Heathcote in basketball.

Both were here Wednesday for the annual Michigan State golf outing at the Point O'Woods. And both displayed a surprising air of confidence despite recent problems in both sports.

Rogers takes over a football team on three year's NCAA probation but it doesn't stop his

"I'm hoping that we have immediate success," he said. "In fact, I'm expecting it."

Rogers comes to MSU after three years at San Jose State, where his teams finished with a 22.9-3 record. And his takeover of the program after the firing of Denny Stolz has been surprisingly smooth.

Former Dowagiac standout

Dan Underwood, one of three Stolz assistants retained by Rogers, is pleasantly surprised by the easy turnover.

"It's nice to have another chance," Underwood said. "I'm very pleased with the way the thing has turned over. Denny is also happy with the way things came out. His big concern was what kind of a man was going to take over his kids."

Spartan fans can expect to see a more wide-open offense this season than in the past. MSU threw just 98 passes all last season, but in the spring game alone the ball was put in the air 66 times.

"I like to be able to have a little more balance in the offense," Rogers said. "And we hope to have the personnel to do that."

Underwood adds that "The fans may see the football in the air 30 to 40 times a ballgame. There's no question that Rogers is going to challenge the secondaries in the Big Ten."

With the drastic change in the offense and last year's number one tight end, Mike Cobb, ineligible for the first five games, Lakeshore's Charlie Shafer figures to play a major role in the Spartan attack.

Shafer is coming off knee surgery which handicapped him during the spring, but both Underwood and Rogers believe he should be an important performer.

"Charlie has a great chance of being a starter or at least of making a big contribution with a good fall," Underwood said. "With Cobb ineligible for the first five games and sophomore Cleveland Jackson dismissed for disciplinary action, he could be a key figure.

"If he comes on in the fall, he should play a lot of football."

Cobb was one of seven players who were placed on probation by the NCAA for their involvement in the recruiting scandal. Among the five games Cobb will miss include Ohio State, Notre Dame and Michigan.

With Cobb out in the early going, Rogers is also counting heavily on Shafer.

"Charlie looms very large in our plans at tight end," he said. "The first thing we hope is that he's healthy. In the spring we didn't get to see him at his full potential of ability because he was coming off knee surgery.

"He's a tall target and we're looking for people who can catch the football."

Probably the player who figures most in Rogers' plans is speedy sophomore quarterback Ed Smith, who beat out junior Marshall Lawson for the number one slot in the spring.

"Smith has quick feet and a quick release and both are assets for a quarterback," Rogers said. "He completed 65 per cent of his passes in the spring. That's the sign of a guy getting the ball to the proper place at the proper time."

On the basketball end, Heathcote faces a much more challenging task. Michigan State lost almost half of last year's offense when Terry Furlow graduated. And attendance shrank to little more than 4,000 fans per game.

To compound that problem, the dismissal of Gus Ganakas came right as the recruiting season was coming to an end and effectively destroyed the efforts of Gus and his staff. Heathcote was able to land three junior college transfers, a 6-7 freshman from the Virgin Islands and a pair of 6-3 guards. But he doesn't expect much of a contribution from the group this

"Most of the junior college players are marginal players who we hope will develop from playing," Heathcote said. "The two freshmen are very good prospects, but whether they are going to be ready to contribute anything this year is a question."

Heathcote, head coach at Montana the past five years, is hopeful that last year's three returning starters, including Dowagiac's Edgar Wilson, will offer the leadership the team needs.

"Wilson, Greg Kelser and Bob Chapman are the keys to what little success we have this year," Heathcote said. "We think Kelser is going to be a super player, Chapman a class guard and Edgar a mature and steady influence. But that's not going to be enough to be a contender."

Heathcote plans to use Wilson in much the same way Ganakas did last year.

"Right now in our plans, we're going to use Edgar as a swingman between forward and guard," he said. "We would rather use him at forward, but we don't have enough quality guards in the program right now.

"Edgar's strong point last year was his defensive ability. He was probably the best defensive player on the squad, but I think he would like to branch out more this year. I think he will contribute more offensively this year than he did last year."

Coming into a program in the face of adversity doesn't seem to phase either Rogers or Heathcote. It may be that type of thinking that brings MSU back to athletic prominence.

Trillo's Blast Powers Cub Win PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Hough. After a double play, Manny Trillo's three-run homer in the 11th inning powered the Chicago Cubs to a 5-2 victory

Wednesday night. Bill Madlock opened the 11th off reliever Ron Reed with a single. After Jerry Morales bounced out, Pete LaCock was intentionally walked. Trillo then smashed his fourth home run of the season on a 3-2 pitch, the ball hitting the top of the fence and dropping into the Cubs' bullpen in left field.

over the Philadelphia Phillies

Bruce Sutter, 2-2, the third Chicago pitcher, worked two innings to earn the victory. It was the fourth loss for Reed, who hadn't given up a home run since June 7.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Joe Wallis led off with a double off Jim Lonborg, was sacrificed to third and scored on Bill Madlock's topped

The Phillies came back with two off Bill Bonham on a single by Dave Cash, an error by first-baseman LaCock, an infield out and Greg Luzinski's double.

Chicago tied it with two out in the second when Mick Kelleher doubled and Bonham singled him home.

Jay Johnstone singled to open the Phillies' ninth and when he took a wide turn at first, leftfielder Jose Cardenal tried to throw him out at first. Bonham, however, cut off the throw and had Johnstone trying to advance but second-baseman Trillo dropped the ball for an error. After pinch-hitter Bobby Tolan was intentionally walked, Darold Knowles worked out of the tight spot. He forced Johnstone at third on pinch-hitter Terry Harmon's bunt, struck out pinch-hitter Ollie Brown on three pitches and got Bob Boone, a third pinch batter, on an infield out.

Phil Niekro knows what to do with a knuckleball at either end of its dance to the plate.

The veteran flutterballer of the Atlanta Braves knucklexis way to a 7-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night and also walloped a knuckler from Charlie Hough over the fence park for a threerun homer in the sixth inning that broke the game open.

"I got a bigger kick out of the win than hitting the home run," Niekro said, ruining the theory that pitchers love to talk about their hitting more than their

Hough walked Vic Correll but then served up a knuckler which Niekro belted over the left field fence. Niekro also singled home a run off Elias Sosa in the

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco routed Cincinnati 7-0. Pittsburgh nipped the New York Mets 1-0 in 13. San Diego edged Houston 2-1 in 10 innings for Randy Jones' 18th triumph and Montreal blanked St. Louis 3-0. The second game of the scheduled twinighter was rained out.

John D'Acquisto and Gary Lavelle combined on a five-hitter and Ken Reitz drove in three runs as the Giants handed the Reds their third shutout in 100 games this season. D'Acquisto allowed four hits before a blister on the thumb of his pitching hand forced him out with one out in the seventh. Rookie Santo Alcala, trying to become the Reds' first 10-game winner, was kayoed in the third.

Richie Hebner's fourth home run in the 13th inning off Ken Sanders produced the only run of the game after Pittsburgh's Doc Medich and New York's Tom Seaver traded 10 innings of shutout pitching. Pirate reliever Dave Giusti won his first game of the season.

Evacuees Reach Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - The U.S. Navy transport Coronado brought 155 Americans and about 145 evacuees of other nationalities Lehanon to Athens today after a smooth 46-hour journey.

The 10,000-ton amphibious transport was greeted at the U.S.-Greek military terminal at Keratsini, outside the Greek capital, by friends and relative of the evacuees and officials of the U.S. Embassy.

North Central Wants To Move Into Big Time

DETROIT (AP) — North Central Airlines, a Midwestern regional carrier, wants to move into the big time.

The line is asking the Civil Aeronautics Board to grant it five new, big-city routes, including two non-stop flights each to Atlanta and Boston, which company officials say could mean an extra $50 million in revenue.

Company President Bernard Sweet says the airline figures it can make money on the routes even in competition with na-tional airlines, because North Central is a "feeder" line from a large number of smaller ci-

Sweet said the company had carnings of $1.85 million in the quarter ended July 30; on revenues of $47.1 million, and is 'expecting one of its best vars' for 1976. The airline's best year to date was 1974 when it earned $8 million.

The airline primarily serves Michigan, Ohio, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Michigan cities served by North Central include Detroit. Traverse City, Lansing, Sault ste. Marie and the Tri-cities Airport.

Meanwhile, North Central has reached an agreement with one of its smaller airports, in Pelis-

Government Offers 8% In $1,000 Bond Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is holding a major sale of notes and bonds next week that is open to persons with as little as $1,000 to invest.

The $1,000 note will draw 8 per cent interest, which is higher than the interest naid on savings and loans. To get the return, investors will have to let the government hold their money for 10 years while receiving interest payments twice a year. The notes are part of a package of financing announced Wednesday by the Treasury Department.

The notes are available directly from the Treasury Department by mail or in perand from Federal Reserve Banks across the country through next Wednesday. They are sold only at $1,000 and mul-tiples of $1,000. Treasury requires a down payment of 20 per cent for people buying less than $500,000, with the balance due Aug. 16.

Treasury will be offering at least $4 billion of its 10-year, 8 per cent notes, and officials say the government might increase amount if the demand

A dispute over who would pay the Peliston airport apparently has been resolved, with North Central agreeing to pick up the tab as long as landing fees are not increased by too large an

Kellogg Chief Hits FTC Suit

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) -The Federal Trade Commission's anti-trust suit against four leading cereal makers is an ambitious assault on the free enterprise system, the president of Kellogg Co.

charged Wednesday. William LaMothe said the government was acting as "a mistrustful regulator that seeks to break us up, strip away our plants and force us to give up our most successful products."

The FTC suit says Kellogg's, General Mills, General Foods and Quaker Oats dominate the breakfast cereal industry and discourage competition Each company has denied the charge.

LaMothe told the International Platform Association Convention that the cereal industry must fight the suit "all the way to the Supreme Court if we have to."

A hearing on the FTC's charges against the cereal makers will be held here Sept.

Kellogg's is based in Battle Creek, Mich.

Government Offers 8% In $1,000 Bond Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is holding a major sale of notes and bonds next week that is open to persons with as little as $1,000 to invest.

The $1,000 note will draw 8 per cent interest, which is higher than the interest paid on savings bonds or by banks and savings and loans. To get the return, investors will have to let the government hold their money for 10 years while receiving interest payments twice a year.

The notes are part of a package of financing announced Wednesday by the Treasury Department.

The notes are available directly from the Treasury Department by mail or in person and from Federal Reserve Banks across the country through next Wednesday. They are sold only at $1,000 and multiples of $1,000. Treasury requires a down payment of 20 per cent for people buying less than $500,000, with the balance due Aug. 16.

Treasury will be offering at least $4 billion of its 10-year, 8 per cent notes, and officials say the government might increase that amount if the demand warrants

Memorial Now $12 Million Facility

Quarter Century Of Progress

On July 29, 1951, Memorial hospital opened the doors of its new $2 million medical facility overlooking the St. Joseph river.

Today, as Memorial celebrates its 25th anniversary, it can look back on a quarter century of progress that has seen the hospital more than double in size and expand its services to patients many times over.

The result is a physical plant that, together with equipment, represents a cost of almost $12 million today and offers a range of services relatively unique for a hospital of its size and location.

"People coming from outside this community tell me we have a very sophisticated operation, medically speaking," says Hospital Administrator Robert A. Bradburn. "They say for a community and hospital this size, they don't find many with as wide a variety of services as we can offer.

"This means, that within certain limits, patients do not have to go outside the area for the vast majority of their health care.

The original 1951 hospital had 85,779 square. feet of floor space and a capacity of 104 beds. It was constructed to replace the former St. Joseph Sanitarium after a successful campaign drive spearheaded by Frederick S. Upton, president of the sanitarium and hospital boards from 1936 to 1970.

in 1969, the hospital's capacity was increased to 220 beds with the opening of a new south wing that added 93,350 feet of floor space. It was the major portion of a $5 million project that also included remodeling of existing facilities

The $1.8 million mental health addition was opened in 1979. The 42,079-square foot addition includes space leased to the Riverwood Community Mental Health Center and a 30bed in-patient facility operated by the hospi-

The new boiler room addition, which adds another 8,750 feet of floor space, is part of an almost-completed $1.9 million project that also includes improvements in the hospital's electrical and air-conditioning systems.

Still, a hospital's growth can not be measured in size alone

Much of our growth has been more in sophistication of services than in terms of size," Bradburn says. "You might say instead of getting tremendously bigger, we've eallen betler

'One of the reasons we've been able to attract physicians in medical specialties is because we have the facilities with which to work. Right now, we have an adequate number of beds, but we still need more physicians."

Looking to the future, Bradburn for sees the possibility of even further expansion of physical facilities, although he notes that the cost of both construction and equipment for hospitals is becoming increasingly expen-

"The biggest change I've seen here is the out-patient utilization of our services," notes, "partly because of increased cost of in-patient care and partly because doctors are tending toward more out-patient treat-

"The next building changes I see would provide more facilities for out-patients, like out-patient surgery, where a patient comes in for surgery, stays here a few hours and then goes home. This is a growing trend.

New Boiler Plant Project Provides Power To Spare

Installation of a new boiler plant and improvements in the electrical system and air-conditioning equipment have given Memorial hospital power to spare.

The $1.9 million project, started last August and in its final stages of completion now, was designed with an eye to future expansion of the hospital and to provide needed backup power in the event of almost any emergency.

"With our new boilers, we have sufficient capacity for future expansion of the hospital to at least twice its size without pushing the equipment," says Fred Rolgers, Memorial's chief engineer for the past 10 years.

The most visible signs of the improvment project are a towering 121-foot smoke stack and an addition to the north wing that houses the buspital's new boiler plant.

Inside the addition are three giant water tube boilers standing 14½ feet high, measuring 17 by 11 feet and weighing 46,000 pounds apiece when empty.

With a rated capacity of 765 horsepower apiece they provide a total of almost 2,200 horsepower for heating and other hospital needs — more than triple the capacity of five smaller boilers they replaced.

Three of the old boilers in the original baspial structure will be removed to make way for maintenance and storage space, while two 52-horsepower boilers in the mental health addition will be retained for possible emergency use, although disconnected from the steam lines:

The new boilers, capable of burning either gas or oil, normally will be used only two at a time. Rotgers says, with the third one serving as a standby unit in the event one of the others would have to be shut down.

Also installed in the boiler room are two new hot water generators capable of providing an "essentially limitless" supply of holwater for the hospital, which Rotgers estimates presently uses about 10-12,000 gallous a day.

Another new item in the boiler room is a pathological incinerator, capable of burning 100 pounds an hour of laboratory material and contaminated wastes at a temperature of 1,400 degrees Fahrenheit.

All smoke from the boiler plant will be dispersed through the new radial brick stack, which tapers from a diameter of 12 feet at the base to six feet at the top.

To meet federal and state regulations, two back-flow preventers were installed in the main water line to the hospital, preventing any chance of contaminating city water with reverse flow in the event city pressure should drop at any time.

The installation of two of the valve systems will prevent any disruption of water supply to the hospital when they are shut down for required annual inspections. Rotgers explained.

Changes in the electrical supply and distribution system include installation of two new transformers and automatic switching equipment that can shift the bospital's power source from one Indiana & Michigan substation to another in 1.6 seconds.

One of the transformers steps down the electrical supply from more than 12,000 volts to 400 volts for motors and other electrical power units while the other reduces current to 230 and 115 volts for lighting and smaller electrical equipment.

Also installed was a second 450-kilowatt emergency power generator — a 12-cylinder diesel-driven unit with a 480-volt output.

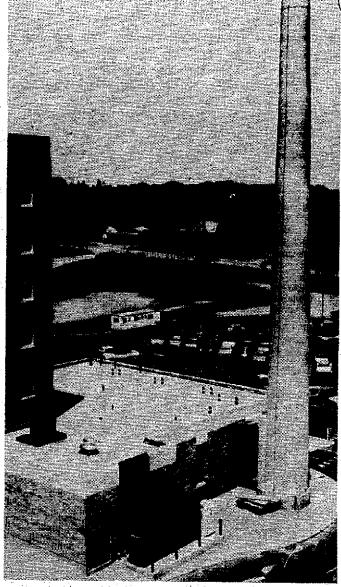

In event of a total power outage, the generators will start up automatically and have power restored in three seconds for approximately 80 per cent of the hospital's needs

The new boiler room is completely covered by emergency power; which also was extended to two elevators in the north wing and two X-ray procedure rooms.

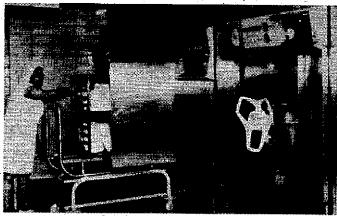

Air-conditioning capacity was increased from 362 tons to 737 tons by installation of a second compressor unit and air-conditioning was extended to the main kitchen. An enlarged employe parking lot also was included in the overall project.

"The hardest part was doing the project without interruption of normal services," Rotgers says, "but there was very little inconvenience to patients or the hospital.

"If the power goes off at home of if the city turns off the water for an hour, people think it's a catastrophe. You can imagine bow much more serious it would be here."

STERILE SURROUNDINGS: Corine Jones, central service technican at Memorial hospital, loads one of main sterilizers used to provide all sterile supplies used by hospital except instruments.

Medical Staff Keystone Of New Technology

Technological advancements in the medical profession continue at a rapid pace, but they are of little value without a competent medical staff to take advantage of them.

Memorial hospital is fortunate to have just such a dedicated group of doctors, according to Dr. Stanley R. Mesirow, chief of the hospital's medical staff.

However, he adds, providing up-to-date medical care at the hospital is not just the work of doctors alone.

"The addition of new technologies and new medical and surgical specialties at Memorial has proceeded at a fast pace as the result of effective cooperation among the board of trustees, the administration, the medical staff and the community," Dr. Mesirow declares.

"Additionally, the hospital auxiliary has made invaluable contributions in patient care and in acquisition of new equipment."

The medical staff at Memorial includes 85 members, 25 courtesy members on the active staffs at other hospitals and six honorary members. The dental staff includes 21 active, members and six courtesy members.

Departmental chiefs for the hospital are; Anesthesia — David W. Learned; Dentistry — H. William Fowler; Emergency-outpatient Care — Robert R. Small; General Practice — William K. Rock; Medicine — Gerald N. Beal; Obstetrics and Gynecology — John J. Turner; Pathology — Richard E. Lininger; Pediatrics — Samuel H. Gould; Psychiatry — Martin F. Abbert; Radlology — John T.

Medical Staff Keystone Of New Technology

Technological advancements in the medical profession continue at a rapid pace, but they are of little value without a competent medical staff to take advantage of them.

Memorial hospital is fortunate to have just such a dedicated group of doctors, according to Dr. Stanley R. Mesirow, chief of the hospital's medical staff.

However, he adds, providing up-to-date medical care at the hospital is not just the work of doctors alone.

'The addition of new technologies and new medical and surgical specialties at Memorial has proceeded at a fast pace as the result of effective cooperation among the board of trustees, the administration, the medical staff and the community," Dr. Mesirow

"Additionally, the hospital auxiliary has made invaluable contributions in patient care and in acquisition of new equipment.'

The medical staff at Memorial includes 85 members, 25 courtesy members on the active staffs at other hospitals and six honorary members. The dental staff includes 21 active members and six courtesy members.

Departmental chiefs for the hospital are: Anesthesia - David W. Learned; Dentistry

- H. William Fowler; Emergency-outpatient Care - Robert R. Small; General Practice -William K. Rock; Medicine - Gerald N. Beal: Obstetrics and Gynecology - John J. Turner; Pathology - Richard E. Lininger; Pediatrics - Samuel H. Gould; Psychiatry -Martin F. Abbert; Radiology - John T. McLelland; Surgery - Thomas Costello.

Chairman of the Emergency-outpatient Care committee is Dean Hudnutt.

Auxiliary Donates Service, Money

Of the 489 members of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, about 400 devote varying numbers of hours to performing some 25 different services for patients and staff at the hospital.

Other members of the big volunteer group perform duties outside the institution, such as executive work, fund raising and involvement in community projects.

The auxiliary, which recently celebrated its 28th year of service, last year contributed 52,000 hours of work to the hospital and donated $23,000 for equipment purchases.

"The Lantern coffeeshop and the Round Table gift shop are operated by 146 volunteers a week in addition to the cooks and employes," says Mrs. William (Patt) Johnson, auxiliary president. "They have proven to be the two best fund-raising sources for our organization."

Efforts of auxiliary members are coordinated by Mrs. Thomas Starkey, who has been a member of the hospital staff for 20 years and has served as Director of Volunteers since the volunteer department was created nine years ago.

The department's purpose is to train, orient, place and supervise the volunteers, enabling the hospital to best utilize the available volunteer work force.

Some 147 teenagers participated in the program during the past year, with 14-15 year olds working in the coffee shop while 16-year-olds involved in medical career awareness may be found serving throughout the hospital.

Male volunteers are increasing in numbers. There are 14 men active in the auxiliary at present and even more could be used

Officers of the auxiliary are: Mrs. William Johnson, president; Mrs. Robert Braun, first vice president; Mrs. Charles Johnson, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Starks, recording secretary; Mrs. Blake Patton, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. John Globensky, treasurer.

Physical Therapy Not 'Health Club'

The physical therapy department at ment recorded 11,224 patient visits, and Memorial hospital may bear some resemblance to a health club or spa, but there's a big difference.

Nobody ever comes in here and just works out," explains Marge Stamm, chief physical therapist. "Most of the treatment involves exercise done by a patient and a therapist working together.

When a patient gets so he can do it on his own, he's discharged."

That, of course, is the goal of the physical therapy department, which is designed to restore patients' physical functioning strengthening muscles, improving mobility and relieving pain - no matter what the about 60 per cent of the individuals treated were out-patients.

The age of patients ranges from 2 months for some of those in the infant Cerebral Palsy program to the late 90's for others who have suffered broken hips and similar injuries.

Although the department uses various types of special equipment like whirlpool baths and a traction machine, Mrs. Stamm points out that most exercise is done with simple apparatus like weights, pulleys, walkers and crutches to provide both assistance and resistance.

She also stresses that "we do not try to be a rehabilitation center" for patients whose problems extend into mental and emotional

"When people are smashed up in every rea of life, we can't handle them,'' she says. "Our work is designed to meet their physical problems.

BREATH TEST: Bert Anderson (left), chief respiratory therapist at Memorial hospital, uses treadmill and other equipment to test breathing effectiveness of patient suffering congestive lung disease.

Breathing More Effectively Is Goal For Lung Patients

Teaching patients with chronic lung treadmill set at a five-degree grade without diseases how to breathe more effectively is one of the new and exciting functions of Memorial hospital's respiratory therapy department.

Called pulmonary rehabilitation, the treatment is aimed mainly at individuals suffering from obstructive lung diseases like emphysema, asthma and chronic bronchitis.

"We can't cure them, but we can help them live with it," says Bert Anderson, chief respiratory therapist for the department.

Anderson tells of one emphysema patient forced into early retirement because he could breathe sufficiently during even moderate exercise such as walking

When first checked at the hospital, he was unable to walk two minutes on a special treadmill set at zero-degree grade, even aided by five liters of oxygen.

After six weeks of treatment, the same patient was able to walk indefinitely with the the use of oxygen.

Other responsibilities of the respiratory therapy department include electrocardiography (EKG) - recording and interpreting electrical activity of the heart and testing the breathing ability of a variety of patients

The department also is responsible for all esuscitation in the hospital, maintains ven' tilators for all patients and performs all areterial blood gas tests.

A dynamic electrocardiogram permits the department to record patients' heart activity at home for a 24-hour period and then monitor this record in 12 minutes in the hospital for any abnormalities, checking it against a diary or log maintained by the patient.

Social Workers Can Help Solve Emotional Problems

It often takes more than surgery or medication to solve the problems of patients at Memorial hospital, and that's where the medical social work department comes in.

"There's a growing awareness on the medical staff that many problems are not just physical," says Mary Beth Gorka, hospital social worker. "The emotional factor is becoming more important all the time."

Thus, Mrs. Gorka says, an increasing arrount of her time is spent counseling patients — primarily those having problems adjusting to the prospect of a serious illness or knowledge of impending death.

"Sometimes just being in the hospital or having tests can scare people," she says, "and many patients need financial counseling too. You could go into every room everyone has something to tell you

Mrs. Gorka's primary responsibility is helping patients and their families plan for discharge from the hospital into nursing homes, rehabilitation centers or back to their own bornes.

Two other social workers in the department work exclusively in the hospital's psychiatric wing, assisting in evaluation of patients and participating in individual and group therapy.

Laboratory Busy Place

Conducting 150,000 tests a year that can determine the course of patient treatment is an around the clock operation for Memorial hospital's laboratory.

A staff of 25 employes supervised by Chief Technologist Pat Darnell use approximately $120,000 worth of sophisticated equipment to conduct lab tests 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Directly responsible for operation of the laboratory is a corporation of five pathologists — Dr. Richard Lininger, Dr. William Benner, Dr. Charles Boonstra, Dr. Edwin Hubbard and Dr. Paul Tam.

Tests for patients both in and out of the hospital are conducted by seven different departments in the laboratory and range from typing and cross-matching of blood to microscopic examination of human tissues.

The most expensive single piece of equipment in the laboratory is the Coulter Counter, a $50,000 marvel that can run a complete blood count and give a direct print-out of seven test results in 40 seconds.

"With our old counter, it took 10 minutes to get the same information we now get in 40 seconds," Mrs. Darnell notes.

One of the newest pieces of equipment is a $22,000 computerized chemistry analyzer used for such tests as the blood sugar level of diabetics, enzymes of cardiac patients and blood urea nitrogen of kidney patients.

The laboratory also supervises the blood bank, maintaining a minimum supply of fresh whole blood at all times for transfusions and returning outdated blood to Lansing for processing into albumin.

"We really think of ourselves as a vital part of patient care," says Mrs. Darnell. "For a hospital this size, I think we have a very good lab."

CALL CENTER: Kaye MacMillan, emergency room nurse at Memorial hospital, receives information from ambulance bringing patient to hospital. In foreground is new unit that eventually will enable emergency room to monitor patients' heart response while they are on way to hospital in ambulance.

Emergency Room Serves Many As 'Family Doctors'

Hospital emergency rooms may be portrayed on television as the scene of constant crisis and ambulance calls, but that isn't generally the case.

"Only about 25 per cent of the patients seen in our emergency room are what we classify as emergencies," says Robert A. Bradburn, administrator at Memorial hospital. "This is true of hospitals anywhere."

Mrs. Irma Hannah, supervisor of emergency room nursing, explains that "more and more people are using the emergency room as their primary medical care facility. They're coming here instead of going to a family doctor."

This has produced an ever-increasing patient load. Last year 33,700 patients were treated in Memorial's emergency room and the average so far this year is running over 100 patients a day.

Real emergencies still receive priority treatment, Mrs. Hannah stresses, and patients who require continuing medical care are advised to seek a family physician.

The emergency room is manned 24 hours a day by at least one of five dootors specializing in emergency medical treatment — Dr. David W. Hills, Dr. Robert Small, Dr. James Galles, Dr. Joseph Cooper and Dr. Edwin G.

In addition, members of the hospital medical staff are on call at all times if the patient needs to be admitted or if a specialist is required.

The emergency room has direct radio communication with ambulance personnel to receive advance information on emergency patients and a variety of special equipment to treat them once they arrive.

Eventually, through a new Cardio-Alert system, ambulances will be equipped with transmitting equipment so that the emergency room can monitor patients' cardiac response while they are still on the way to the hospital.

Mrs. Hannah supervises a staff of 16 nurses and two orderlies, three of whom are on duty at all times. Patients' needs are evaluated by a registered nurse when they arrive and they receive treatment on a priority basis.

Emergency cases fluctuate on a seasonal basis, Mrs. Hannah says, with summer producing more water-related and recreational vehicle injuries as well as many cases of insect and animal bites.

Winter is producing an increasing number of snowmobile accidents, she says, as well as seasonal increase in traffic accidents.

The emergency room has direct radio communication with ambulance personnel to receive advance information on emergency patients and a variety of special equipment to treat them once they arrive.

Eventually, through a new Cardio-Alert system, ambulances will be equipped with transmitting equipment so that the emergency room can monitor patients' cardiac response while they are still on the way to the hospital.

Mrs. Hannah supervises a staff of 16 nurses and two orderlies, three of whom are on duty at all times. Patients' needs are evaluated by a registered nurse when they arrive and they receive treatment on a priority basis.

Emergency cases fluctuate on a seasonal basis, Mrs. Hannah says, with summer producing more water-related and recreational vehicle injuries as well as many cases of insect and animal bites.

Winter is producing an increasing number of snowmobile accidents, she says, as well as seasonal increase in traffic accidents.

Surgical Cases Mounting Steadily

Sixty per cent of the natients at Memorial hospital undergo surgery in one of the hospital's six operating rooms.

This figure is well above the national average of 40 per cent for surgical patients, according to Robert A. Bradburn, hospital administrator, and resulted in more than 4,600 operations being performed during the 1975-76 fiscal year.

The surgical suite, located on the first floor of the hospital's original structure, includes a postoperative recovery room with space for seven patients who are close at hand in case of any complications following surgery.

The entire suite is closed to anyone in street clothes and scrubbed down completely at the end of each day's operating schedule. Each operating room also is sanitized between each surgical procedure as a further guard against infection.

Pharmacy Aided By Computer

Computerized medical profiles of all patients at Memorial hospital are helping the pharmacy provide accurate delivery of medication and maintain an up-to-the-minute inventory of drugs on hand.

The system, aided by a new computer terminal installed in the pharmacy this year, also provides automatic billing of all drugs prescribed during a patient's hospital stay, according to Chief Pharmacist Ernie

Each day the pharmacy receives a computer print-out for every patient in the hospital, showing the dosage and schedule for all active medication and a list of any allergies the patient might have.

At present, these print outs are checked by a staff pharmacist for compatibility of drugs and possible allergic reactions, but Lenthall says this function, too, eventually may be performed automatically by computer.

Riverwood Uses Hospital Facilities

It's hard for an outsider to tell where Memorial hospital ends and the Riverwood Community Mental Health Center begins.

So intertwined are the two facilities that one psychiatrist, Dr. Martin F. Abbert, serves both as director of the mental health center and director of the hospital's own inpatient psychiatric program.

Both the Riverwood center and Memorial's in-patient program are located in a $1.8 million addition to the hospital opened in 1970. The hospital leases building space to Riverwood and has administrative responsibility for 35 employes in the in-patient program.

Memorial and Riverwood also cooperate in 24-hour psychiatric emergency service utilizing the hospital's emergency room facilities and staff and Riverwood psychiatrists on call.

Riverwood is operated by the Berrien County Community Mental Health Services board, composed of 12 members appointed by the county board of commissioners. The board also administers all state funds for mental health services in Berrien county.

The remainder of funds for operating ex-

Demand For X-Rays Rising Fast

In the past 2½ years, Memorial hospital has invested more than $500,000 in new high-speed X-ray equipment to keep pace with the growing demand for diagnostic X-rays

So great is the demand that the X-ray department is now open 24 hours a day throughout the year and regularly schedules routine appointments as late as 11 o'clock at night.

Jerry Strejc, chief X-ray technologist, says his department currently is processing 10,000 X-ray films a month and handling up to 150 patients a day, many of whom are scheduled during the noon hour or after 6 p.m. to avoid missing work.

One of the most elaborate pieces of equipment in the department is a $500,000 bi-plane X-ray unit that can take films during the same sequence from both above and to one side of the patient.

Used in conjunction with two high speed film changers, the unit can produce six films per second. It is used primarily for X-rays of the head and circulatory system with the aid of radio-opaque dye injected under pressure.

Two of the newer procedures used in the X-ray department are ultrasonic diagnosis and xeroradiography.

The ultrasonic unit, utilizing a principle first introduced to detect submarines

(Sonar) during World War II, uses high-frequency sound waves in place of actual X-rays:

Unlike X-rays, it is able to differentiate between body tissue and fluids — between a tumor and a cyst, for instance — a diagnosis previously possible only through surgical procedure.

The most frequent use of the ultrasonic unit is with expectant mothers to eliminate any possibility of radiation dariger, and it is also used frequently in neurosurgery to detect movement of the brain's mid-line.

Xeroradiography uses X-rays to produce a positive image on specially-treated Xerox paper instead of the common negative image on photographic film. It provides better detail in examining soft itssue and is the best diagnostic tool for detecting breast cancer.

Normal X-ray films range in size from 8 by 10 inches to 14 by 17 and can be processed in 90 seconds by automatic developers.

The department also produces small dental X-rays with a portable dental unit and has another portable unit for use in surgery.

At present the department is staffed by 13 registered technologists under direction of six radiologists. Dr. William A. Chickering, Dr. Walter M. Decker, Dr. Henry J. Klos, Dr. William F. Leabey, Dr. Gene Maddock and Dr. John T. McLelland.

Hospital Food Service Offers Quality, Variety

You won't find lobster tail on the menu at Memorial hospital, but patients often are surprised at the quality and variety of food served in their meals.

"We take pride in our food," says Jack Saxton, food service director for the hospital. "We buy quality raw food and serve quality

Saxton and his staff of 31 employes serve a lot of meals — an average of 12,500 patient meals a month — and 60 per cent of them are for patients on special diets ranging from fat-free and salt-free to clear liquids.

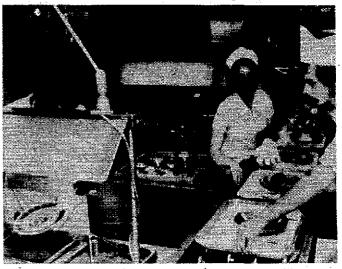

Those on all but liquid diets receive selective menus each day and can order a choice of appetizers; main course, vegetable, potato, salad, dessert and beverage for both lunch and dinner.

So varied is the menu that a patient on a regular diet could go 12 days without repeating the main course at either lunch or dinner. Meals are speeded from the start of the tray line in the kitchen to patients' rooms in an average of 11 minutes and kept warm in heated metal plate holders and domes so they remain palatable if serving is delayed for any reason.

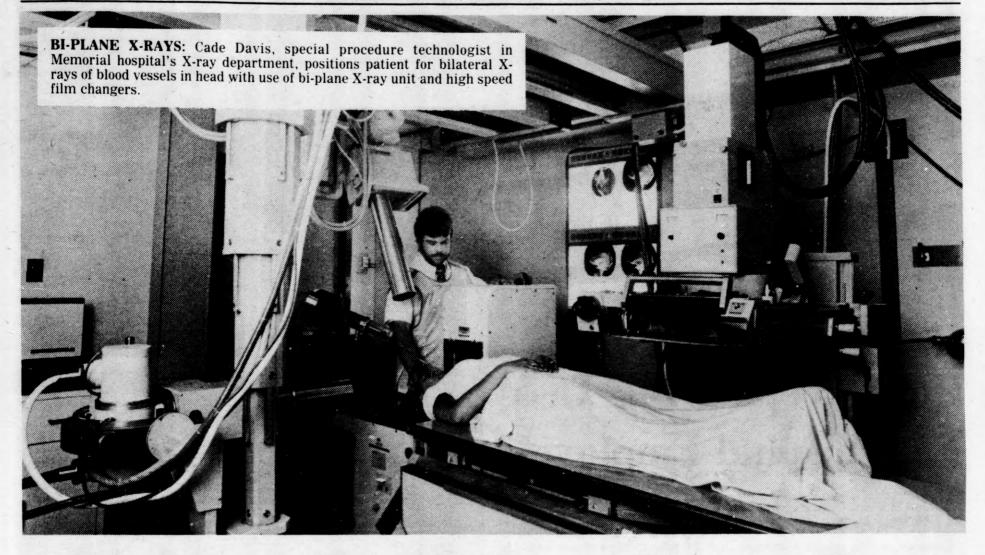

Emplayes at the hospital receive the same food in the Eighth Street Cafe — the staff dining room — where roughly 150 meals are served each noon.

Saxton's staff prepares about 90 per cent of the food it serves from scratch, including 50 per cent of the soups on the menu and even freshly-baked danish rolls for the morning coffee break.

"We get quite a few compliments on our food," says Saxton, who foodly recalls one from actress Mercedes McCambridge, who called the hospital's bread pudding "the best she ever had" during a brief stay last fall.

Housekeeping Big Task For Hospital Employes

Keeping Memorial hospital spackling clearl and stocked with immaculate linen is a job that would boggle the mind of the average housewife.

Data Review Important

If you give Lee Mikesell a patient's age and the diagnosis of his illness, he can tell you how long that patient is likely to remain in the hospital.

That is just one of the responsibilities of Mikesell, health record analyst in Memorial hospital's medical data review department.

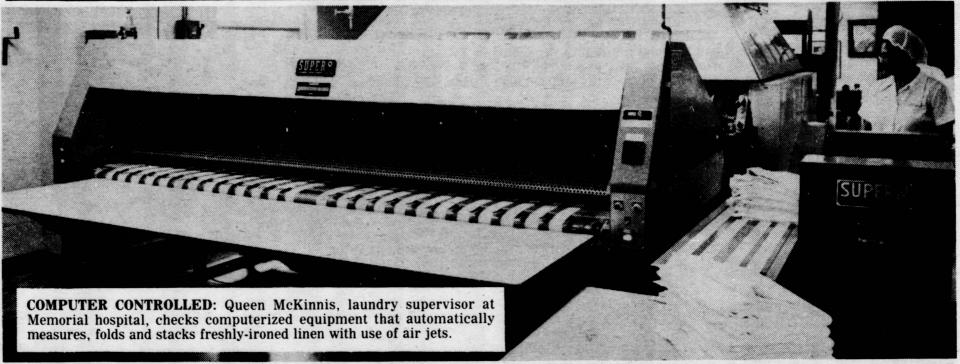

By using statistics from Memorial and other hospitals throughout Michigan and the United States, Mikesell helps the hospital meet requirements established by the federal government while at the same time utilizing its bed space to best advantage.

For every patient admitted to the hospital, Mikeseli establishes a probable length of stay based on the patient's age, medical problem and statistics compiled by the Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities located in Ann Arbor.

At specified intervals during hospitalization, each patient's chart is reviewed to determine if further confinement is necessary.

The review is required under Medicare regulations that set limits on the length of time patients' bills will be paid and is conducted for non-Medicare patients as part of the hospital's cost control activity.

Mikesell also produces statistics to assist the medical staff in periodic reviews of medical care provided patients for various illnesses with the goal of improving the quality of care.

Services Stress Patients' Comfort, Identity

A quiet, restful atmosphere and the services of a special patient representative are designed to make a stay at Memorial hospital as pleasant as possible.

The patient representative, formerly called the "hospital hostess," is a position created 10 years ago to help patients feel at home in hospital surroundings, according to Robert A. Bradburn, hospital administrator.

"People who aren't familiar with hospitals, particularly, tend to lose their identity when they are admitted," he says.

"First we ask them a lot of personal questions, then we take away their clothing and put them in a strange room with strange equipment where people are doing things to them they have no control over. They tend to feel like things.

"Our patient representative tries to restore their identity as individuals — to de-institutionalize the institution."

The present patient representative, Mrs. Doris Cain, is easily identifiable as "the lady in blue" and becomes familiar to patients through daily visits.

Her duties range from helping resolve complaints or checking on patients' insurance with the business office to helping long-term patients set their hair or just chatting with those who need someone to talk

She also assists families of patients in cases of serious illness or impending death, helps contact clergymen or funeral homes and even runs errands on occasion.

"She's the one person who's always the same — the person patients can recognize," says Bradburn, pointing out that during the course of a week the nurses, aides and other employes serving a patient are changed many times.

Mrs. Cain, the hospital's fourth patient representative, had been a volunteer at Memorial for 14 years before taking the position almost 2½ years ago.

At the time the position was created, Memorial was one of few hospitals in the nation to have such a hostess, Bradburn says, but according to the American Hospital Association patient representatives now serve 1,400 of the country's 7,000 hospitals.

Patient rooms at Memorial all are air-conditioned and have beds electrically operated by controls within the patient's reach. Each room also has piped-in oxygen, wall-mounted blood pressure units and a call system that enables patients to speak to the nursing station without raising their voice.

Conveniences for each patient include a telephone, radio with pillow speaker and rental television sets.

All rooms also have special lighting and acoustical ceiling tile for noise control.

Intensive Care Patients Observed 'Round Clock

Nurses in Memorial hospital's intensive care unit use a variety of sophisticated equipment to provide observation of patients 24 hours a day.

Located on the third floor of the hospital's south wing, the intensive care unit—or ICU, as it is called—is virtually self-contained and operates independently of other patient rooms surrounding it.

It is designed to provide intensive nursing for victims of heart attacks, serious accidents or illnesses, and patients who have just received major surgery.

Each of six patient areas is equipped with a cardiac monitor that continuously records the patient's heartbeat and is hooked into a central monitor in front of the nurse's station so that six patients may be observed at once. Six additional monitors are located in other rooms on the third floor to provide monitoring of less critical patients, according to the ICU head nurse, William Fisher.

The six patient areas in the ICU also contain beds electrically operated by the nurse or patient, a blood pressure gauge and piped in oxygen, suction and compressed air.

Close at hand are medication and equipment for doctors and nurses to use in event of a cardiac arrest or other emergency situations.

When such an emergency occurs, the ICU nurse can sound an alarm that rings at a nearby nurses station and also can summon a physician instantity through the hospital paging system.

ICU nurses also have standing orders of procedures to be followed in emergency situations until doctors arrive.
